Eisenhower Letter to Premier Diem Asks for 'Assurances as to Standards of Performance.'

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON, Viet Nam, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower has informed Premier Ngo Dinh Diem the United States expects the South Viet Nam government to carry out vital reforms in exchange for increased direct American aid.

The President, in a personal letter delivered to Diem by Ambassador Donald Heath Saturday night, also asked for "assurances as to the standards of performance" (this government) would be able to maintain in the event such aid is supplied.

The phraseology of the President's letter appeared to reflect growing concern over Premier Diem's failure to carry out agrarian, press and legislative reforms considered necessary to combat successfully the influence of the Communist-led Vietminh.

The country's fate will be at stake two years from now in an election to determine whether the Vietminh or the non-Communists will rule South Viet Nam.

French Translation.
The French translation of the President's message as it appeared in yesterday's official Viet Nam press substituted the word "souhait," which means "wish or desire," for the stronger word "expect." It also softened the reference to standards of performance to the vaguer "sum total of the efforts it would furnish."

"I have been following with great interest the course of developments in Viet Nam," President wrote, "particularly since the conclusion of the conference in Geneva. The implications of the agreement concerning Viet Nam caused grave concern regarding the future of a country temporarily divided by artificial military grouping, weakened by a long and exhausting war, and faced by enemies without and by their subversive collaborators within."

He added that Diem's recent requests for aid in the "formidable project" of moving several hundred thousand Viet Namese from the north to the south are being fulfilled. He continued:

"We have been exploring ways and means to permit our aid to Viet Nam to be more effective and make a greater contribution to the welfare and stability of the Government of Viet Nam. I accordingly am instructing the American Ambassador to Viet Nam to examine with you in your capacity as chief of the Government how an aid program of American aid given directly to your Government can serve and assist Viet Nam in its present hour of trial, provided your Government is prepared to give assurances as to standards of the performance it would maintain in the event such aid is supplied."

Needed Reforms.
The President added the purpose of aid would be to help Viet Nam "in developing and maintaining a strong, viable state capable of resisting attempted subversion or aggression through military means."

The government, which began in July as a purely national one, has been weakened by still unresolved conflicts between the Premier and his army chief of staff, Gen. Nguyen Van Hinh. Hinh criticized the Premier's slowness in realizing reforms and uniting the country in a vigorous anti-Communist campaign.

Only outspoken American support has kept Diem at the helm, in the face of growing opposition from many quarters. United States Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, a member of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, recently said that if Diem should fail, American aid should be withdrawn. The Premier is regarded as honest and a true nationalist. Diem's critics reply it is not enough for him to have integrity if he lacks efficiency and boldness.

GEN. HERSHEY ADVOCATES DOUBLING DRAFT QUOTAS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25 (UP)—The nation's selective service chief says that present draft quotas should be doubled to produce a million-man reserve force, "ready for any military action," within five years.

"Our reserve training program should be pushed ahead so we add about 200,000 men a year to our ready reserve each year for the next five years," said Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey who stopped in New Orleans yesterday to confer with Louisiana National Guard leaders.

Hershey said he believes the program could be carried out with "minor modifications" in the present selective service law which expires in June.

Guatemala Teachers on Democracy Trip

School teachers from Guatemala stepping down from airplane which brought them to Dallas, Texas, yesterday for nine-week study of democracy. Split into five groups, the 100 teachers will go to universities in the Southwest for special courses designed to counteract Communist propaganda they were taught under the former pro-Communist government of Guatemala. After six weeks of study they will go to Washington, inspecting farms, factories and libraries en route.

Supreme Court Again Refuses To Rule on 'Fair Trade' Laws

Action Leaves Standing Two Other Tribunals' Decisions Which Upheld
State and Federal Statutes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (UP)—The Supreme Court refused for the second time today to rule on the constitutionality of State and Federal "fair trade" laws, which allow manufacturers to fix retail prices of trademarked goods.

The court said the challenges to the state laws presented no substantial federal question. It denied review of the cases involving the federal act.

Today's action leaves standing decisions of the supreme courts in New York and New Jersey upholding the fair trade statutes in those states. The state courts also held valid the Federal law which makes "fair trading" applicable to goods crossing state lines.

When the fair trade issue first reached the Supreme Court in 1951, so-called fair trade laws were in effect in 45 states—except Missouri, Texas, Vermont and the District of Columbia. They permit manufacturers of trademarked merchandise like electrical appliances, liquor, and drugs to make agreements with retailers on minimum selling prices. The controversial feature of the statutes is a "non-signer" provision which makes an agreement with any one retailer binding on all others in the state.

Because such a practice runs counter to the idea behind federal anti-trust laws when pursued in interstate commerce, Congress has passed legislation exempting "fair trade" agreements from the anti-trust statutes. The present law designed for this purpose is the McGuire Act of 1952.

The court refused to review a lower court decision placing broad limitations on the President's power to fire Government workers without cause. The brief order left standing a United States Court of Appeals decision that Leo A. Roth, former Department of Justice attorney, was improperly fired from his $10,800-a-year post in July 1953.

The appeals court, reversing a lower court decision in favor of the Government, had unanimously ordered Roth reinstated in a ruling that affected the job security of all federal workers not protected by veterans' preference laws.

By the Associated Press.
The Supreme Court again denied a hearing to Carolyn Chessman, Los Angeles sex terrorist who was sentenced six years ago to die in California's gas chamber.

During his long wait in the San Quentin prison's death house Chessman stalled off his execution by a series of legal moves and wrote a widely-read book, "Cell 2455, Death Row." He won his fourth reprieve from death last July 29, less than 24 hours before he was scheduled to enter the gas chamber. This latest reprieve was to give the Supreme Court time to consider a new appeal on which it acted today. Six times before the Supreme Court has rejected Chessman's appeals.

The Supreme Court declined also to review a decision holding invalid a Florida tax on pari-mutuel wagering pools of dog racing tracks. The tax is graduated according to the size of the individual pools. The decision, by the Florida Supreme Court, was appealed by the Florida State Racing Commission.

The Supreme Court denied a hearing to the Insurance Company of North America on its claim for $747,047 from the United States Government because of French seizure of American ships prior to 1800. The company, founded in Philadelphia in 1794, paid the amount to policyholders whose American-owned vessels were seized. The firm appealed after the United States court of claims in Washington decided it had no jurisdiction.

U.S. FOREIGN AID IS DOWN 20 PCT. IN THE LAST YEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Department of Commerce said yesterday that United States aid gifts and loans to foreign countries fell off about 20 percent in the year which ended last June 30.

Additionally, the Department's annual report on foreign aid said, for the first time since before World War II, non-military help to western Europe was less than to the rest of the world.

However, the Department said, France and the United Kingdom remained the single biggest beneficiaries of United States grants and credits for other than military end-items.

Net grants and credits by the United States Government to foreign countries, as measured by actual deliveries or payments, totaled $5,200,000,000 in the fiscal year. Military aid, which reached a peak of $4,328,000,000 in fiscal 1953, fell to $3,543,000,000 in fiscal 1954. Non-military loans and grants came to $1,650,000,000, compared with $2,036,000,000 the year before.

GUENTHER SAYS WEST WOULD USE ATOMIC WEAPONS

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Supreme Allied Commander in Europe, said today the Western powers would use atomic weapons if they are attacked in Europe.

"We should be forced to use such weapons to correct the imbalance in relation to the hordes which might be arrayed against us," Gruenther said at a luncheon of the Air League of the British Empire.

"We regret very seriously that we might be parties to an atomic war," the general continued. "But I can promise you that what we are trying to create is a condition which would make war impossible, and we feel that ours is a mission of preserving peace."

MEENDES-FRANCE CALLS FOR TRADE TIES WITH REICH

Saar No Longer Bar, He Says on Radio—Urges Long - Lasting Economic Accords.

PARIS, Oct. 25 (AP)—Premier Mendes-France today pushed his program for far-reaching economic accords with West Germany, moving quickly to follow up the Paris agreements for adding German strength to Western defense.

In a radio address last night, the Premier told his countrymen: "France and Germany are two countries whose nearness to one another and whose resources and production require their close association together."

Mendes-France told his radio audience the signing of an agreement Saturday with West German Chancellor Adenauer on the future of the rich Saar valley removed that obstacle to French-German co-operation.

Search for Markets.
He reminded the French that West Germany is their best customer and "second most important provider of goods."

"Because of this," he said, "we are determined to conclude accords of long duration such as will assure permanent markets for French wheat, sugar, milk products, etc."

"It is also useful to encourage associations between French and German business and financial interests with the aim of making the best of our respective resources, increasing production, and making research to find markets elsewhere in the world."

The Premier said the agreement to Europeanize the Saar within the French economy "satisfied rights and interests of France in a way we had called for in vain for a very long time."

Reassures Saar Critics.
He said the Saar agreement was "not achieved without pain," but discounted fears held in some French quarters that close economic co-operation would give German efficiency supremacy. It was not just a case of dividing present limited markets, Mendes-France said, but "enlarge our fields of activity and our markets."

The agreements signed Saturday in Paris are designed to make West Germany a free and equal partner in the western alliance against the threat of Red aggression. They must be ratified by the national parliaments of the countries concerned.

Western diplomats hoped this could be accomplished by mid-1955, but they looked for some rough going with the Soviet Union in the months ahead.

Russia moved within a few hours after the agreements were reached Saturday, calling for a Big Four conference in November of a German peace settlement.

Eden Says New Union Offers Basis For Dealing With the Communists

Norwegian Foreign Minister Expresses Similar View — Returning Congressmen
Report 'Sobering' Reaction in Russia.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (UP)—British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today that the new Western defense system brought into being Saturday at Paris will, if successful, provide the basis "on which we can seek an understanding with the (Communist) East."

Eden made his prediction in a report to the House of Commons on the Paris conference which ended in agreement to rearm Germany as a defense partner of the West.

"If we can bring about stability and a common purpose in the West," he said, "we shall have established the essential basis on which we can seek an understanding with the East."

Similar View by Norwegian.
Norway's Foreign Minister, Halvard M. Lange, in Paris, also predicted in an interview that the new accords will improve prospects for negotiating "a modus vivendi" with the Russians.

Two American Congressmen who returned to West Germany today from an extensive tour of the Soviet Union reported that the prospects of a rearmament of Germany, linked to Western defense, "is having a sobering and deterring effect on the Kremlin."

Representative Battle (Dem., Alabama), and Representative Fisher (Dem., Texas), agreed that the move to rearm Germany as an ally of the West has caused serious preoccupation in Moscow.

Eden's appearance in Commons was his first since his return from Paris and since he was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II.

His statement on prospects for "an understanding" with the East was accepted as an indication Britain may be ready to open new talks with Russia, once the new European defense system has been approved by the member nations.

The Norwegian Foreign Minister, who is one of the leading figures in the North Atlantic Treaty council, said there are growing indications that the Kremlin itself is increasingly interested in such talks and is "groping toward some settlement with the West."

"Not Easy to Measure."
Eden told Commons: "Her Majesty's Government have faith that this is the beginning of better things to come."

"We must look beyond these immediate aims toward the settlement of broader problems. I believe that such a settlement will never be achieved so long as western Europe remains perplexed and divided."

The British Foreign Secretary said the accomplishments of the past seven weeks in building an alternative to the European Defense Community plan had resulted in agreements "so wide and so significant for the future of Europe that it is not easy to measure them."

Three ships of the United States Sixth Fleet were dispatched to the area.

Meanwhile, United States, French and Italian planes and helicopters still circled over the Mediterranean between Corsica and the French coast and over the French Alps seeking the C-47, which was based at Manton, England.

In the Alps, the search centered over Mount Mounier, north of Nice. The sound of plane engines and a big explosion were heard in two villages at the foot of the mountain last night. The plane which crashed today was first reported to be on en route from Dijon to Rome. Reports from Morsiglia said, however, the plane came from the southeast and was heading westward.

The last report from the C-47 Sunday was a message received by the Bastia control tower in Corsica. In the message the pilot said he had fuel for only six hours, ending at 11 p.m.

The explosion in the Mount Mounier area was heard at about that time, police said.

Snow Hampers Search.
Ground operations were hampered by a thick blanket of snow which fell over the area during the night.

The five crewmen and 16 passengers of the C-47 were based with the 408th Fighter Interceptor Wing in Manton. Their names were withheld.

PARIS, Oct. 25 (AP)—A United States Air Force C-47 carrying 21 airmen has vanished on a flight through stormy weather from Rome to Lyon, France, and as the search for it was under way an unidentified plane was reported to have fallen into the Mediterranean off Corsica today.

A workman in Morsiglia, on the west coast of the French island, said he saw the two-engine plane fly at low altitude and hit the windblasted water a mile and a half offshore shortly after noon.

A few minutes later, the French news agency reported wreckage of that plane had been spotted by United States and French pilots searching for the C-47, missing since 5 p.m. Sunday.

Police killed nine Mau Mau and captured 10 others. The fight climaxed a 10-day search for terrorists after the Mau Mau had raided European farms in this area.

A small police patrol met the gang this morning and quickly called for police and army reinforcements. More troops were reported pouring into the area in an effort to surround the gang.

U.S. SEEKS JAIL SENTENCE FOR CLYDE POWELL IN CONTEMPT CASE

Defense Argues He Acted Within His Rights—Judge Hears Arguments, but Withholds Decision.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Government today asked for a jail sentence for Clyde L. Powell on contempt charges, but attorneys for the former FHA official contended he was within his rights in refusing to answer some questions before a grand jury.

United States District Judge F. Dickinson Letts withheld decision after hearing two hours of arguments. The judge would fix the penalty if Powell is convicted.

Powell, ousted head of rental housing for the Federal Housing Administration, pleaded not guilty to the criminal-contempt charge, based on his refusal to say whether he took official office diaries and desk memoranda with him when he left his post last April. He claimed protection of the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination.

Max H. Goldschtein, special assistant to attorney General Herbert Brownell, told the court it was "ridiculous" to allow Powell to plead the Fifth Amendment to the question. He asked the court to "deal summarily" with Powell and commit him to jail.

Daniel B. Maher, Powell's attorney, begged the court to give the "broadest possible construction" to the Fifth Amendment's protection.

Maher told the court that Powell testified before the grand jury he kept "no official diary," that he removed "nothing except his personal papers and belongings," and that he took no calendar pads.

Fired After Resigning.

Powell, a former St. Louisan, resigned as head of FHA's rental housing division a few days before the Washington House announced last April that it was launching a full-scale inquiry of alleged excessive profits made by some builders of FHA-backed apartment projects. Powell's resignation, which had been accepted, was then held up and later he was formally fired.

Powell has refused to answer questions before the Senate Banking Committee on three separate occasions during its long investigation of the housing program. He claimed the constitutional protection against self-incrimination.

The special grand jury which brought the presentment against Powell Oct. 18 says he also refused to answer questions. It is looking into his conduct as a 20-year FHA employee and into many other aspects of alleged housing irregularities.

The Banking Committee has heard testimony that Powell deposited in a Washington bank $138,000 more than his government tax pay during the years 1945 to 1953. A Washington architect also accused him of demanding and getting $10,000 cash to approve an FHA-insured mortgage increase on a Negro apartment project.

By the United Press
Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall today accused the previous Democratic Administration of conducting a "steal-away" program culminated by the FHA scandals.

The revelations of widespread corruption in the housing program under the Truman Administration are a vivid reminder to the voters of what lies in store if the Democrats should regain power," he said in a prepared statement. "Graft and corruption came to be accepted as a routine part of the Truman era."

Hall coined the word "steal-away," apparently retaliation to the Democrats' often repeated claim that the Republicans have conducted a "giveaway" program of the nation's natural resources.

Hall predicted there will be many more indictments as well as convictions before the housing investigation is complete.

GREEK EDUCATOR ASSAILS BRITISH IN CYPRUS DISPUTE

Cyprus's continuing status as a British colony gravely weakens the West's military and defenses against Russia, President Apostolos Dascalakis of the University of Athens, Greece declared here yesterday.

Dr. Dascalakis, professor of history and a U.N. adviser on the Cyprus question, is touring American universities to confer on educational questions, including Cyprus schooling. The British Governor of the island has made it a crime to criticize government policy or to advocate reunion with Greece, he said.

"In Cyprus, a land with an ancient civilization going back 3000 years," Dr. Dascalakis said, "the British expurgated version of history. And the British willfully encourage Communists as a divisive measure."

Campbell was booked for selling liquor without a city, state or federal license and for operating a pool hall and business establishment without a license.

FIRST SON BORN TO MOTHER OF 13 DAUGHTERS

PITTSFIELD, Mass., Oct. 25 (AP)—Thirteen sisters gained a brother yesterday and lost their claim on being the nation's largest all-girl family.

Six-pound, eight-ounce Leslie Benjamin Brooks crossed over some of the plans when he was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brooks at their farmhouse. But he got a warm welcome nonetheless from the 39-year-old couple and the 13 Brooks daughters aged 1 to 16.

"Now that I have a boy I hope it will be the end," said Brooks, a $50 a week truck driver.

"We'll love him just as much as the girls," his wife declared. A blue blanket was found in which to swath the newborn, Eunice, 16, pointed out. "Oh, dear! All his clothes will be pink."

The Brooks family had mustered a layette in pink for the expected arrival of girl No. 14.

80 PCT. OF VASHON HIGH'S PUPILS FAVOR INTEGRATION

Eighty per cent of the Vashon High School students who replied to a questionnaire on integration favored the move, William G. Mosley, principal of the Negro high school at 3026 Laclede avenue, revealed yesterday.

The questionnaire was given to all 2000 students, of whom 1900 replied, just after the United States Supreme Court decision on the issue May 17. Mosley said in a talk before the Ethical Society of St. Louis, 3648 Washington boulevard.

The majority of the students favored integration for such reasons as greater educational opportunity in mixed classes, shorter distance to mixed schools, and a saving in school day transportation costs. The students did, however, express loyalty to the old school, largely because of friendships, Mosley said.

Fifteen per cent of the students replying opposed integration, fearing unfair treatment by white students, racial conflict, and limited opportunity to participate in extracurricular activities. The remaining 5 per cent of the students neither favored nor opposed the move, Mosley said, but were in doubt as to whether integration would work.

DIXON-YATES DEBATED ON TV BY CURTIS AND PRICE

Democrat Warns 'Scandal Is in the Making'—Republican Calls for Proof.

An impromptu and somewhat heated debate on the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract developed between Congressman Thomas B. Curtis, St. Louis county Republican, and Melvin Price, East St. Louis Democrat, yesterday, during a television show in which they participated.

Curtis and Price, together with other congressional nominees in the St. Louis area, were guests on a program sponsored by the Leagues of Women Voters of St. Louis and St. Louis county and presented by the public affairs department of KWK-TV.

A request by Mrs. Ernest W. Bashford, chairman of the league's city-county committee, who introduced the candidates, that an effort be made to more clearly define the difference of opinion between Republicans and Democrats on the question of "Government in business" led to the debate.

Curtis accused the Democrats of failing to meet the issue directly and of employing "insinuations and innuendoes" in an effort to leave the impression there has been a "give-away" whenever the Republican Administration moves "to get the Government out of business and turn business over to private enterprise."

He expressed belief it is "highly proper" that the Dixon-Yates contract be looked into, but charged that campaign statements made by the Democrats about the contract are "nothing but allegations." He challenged the Democrats to prove them.

Price asserted the "Dixon-Yates deal has the makings of a scandal as big as Teapot Dome." He said that when a contract "guarantees a profit and removes risks, it is taking it out of the field of private enterprise."

MAN KILLED BY BULLET HE FIRED INTO ANOTHER

Charles Curry, 1825 Trendley avenue, East St. Louis, was killed early yesterday when a bullet he fired into the back of another man went through that man's body and struck Curry in the chest. Both men are Negroes.

East St. Louis police said the shooting occurred in a tavern at 1205 South Nineteenth street. Calvin Cole, tavern owner, said Curry became engaged in a dispute with Warren E. Jones, 1801A Gay avenue, over the theft of some coal from a truck. Cole obtained an automatic pistol from behind the bar and attempted to separate the men when they began fighting. Curry grabbed the weapon, Cole said, reached around Jones and shot him in the back while the two men were locked together.

Jones, 25 years old, was reported in serious condition at John Cochran Veterans Hospital here. Curry, 28, was dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital.

PARKER OF G.O.P. OFFERS TO DEBATE WITH DEVEREAUX

Norman C. Parker, chairman of the St. Louis County Republican Central Committee, yesterday challenged Ralph Devereaux, chairman of the county Democratic Central Committee, to a public debate.

Parker offered to discuss Democratic charges that Supervisor Luann F. Matthews blocked the purchase of voting machines, that the Republican Administration has wasted public funds, that Matthews' term has been a "do-nothing" careening one and that an honest election cannot be held without using voting machines.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY IN THEFT OF BRIGHT RED FIRE ENGINE

TOWNSEND, Mass., Oct. 25 (AP)—Thomas Walker, 21 years old, today pleaded not guilty to larceny of a 14-ton, bright red fire engine. Police said Walker, held in $200 bail for hearing Oct. 29, told them he just yielded to an impulse when he took the truck.

U.S. 1954 Civilian Population Is Estimated at 159,084,000

6.3 Pct. Above 1950—Armed Forces Make Total 162,414,000—Missouri Shows 4.1 Pct. Gain, Illinois 5 Pct.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Census Bureau estimated yesterday that the nation had a civilian population last July 1 of 159,084,000.

The figure, which did not include members of the armed forces, represented an increase of 6.3 per cent since the last full census April 1, 1950. The civilian population then was 149,634,000.

Total population, including the armed forces, was estimated at 162,414,000 last July 1. The totals were included in the bureau's annual estimate of population growth by regions, states and territories. All but three of the 48 states—West Virginia, Arkansas and New Hampshire—had civilian population gains from April 1, 1950 to July 1, 1954.

Eight showed growth of more than 10 per cent. Nevada, with a 33.1 per cent increase, led all states in percentage of gain. It increased from 157,000 to 209,000.

Arizona, with a 31.3 per cent gain, and Florida, 25.9, were the only other states topping 20 per cent.

California showed a 17.3 per cent increase. Others over 10 per cent were Delaware 13.8, New Mexico 12.7, Connecticut 10.4 and Michigan 10.2.

Missouri showed a gain of 4.1

per cent, with a climb of 163,000 to a total of 4,115,000. Illinois grew by 434,000 to a total of 9,106,000 for a percentage gain of 5.

California had a population of 12,213,000 on July 1 this year, the bureau estimated. Only New York, with 15,368,000, and Pennsylvania, with 10,755,000, also topped 10,000,000. New York's civilian population gain from 1950 to 1954 was 3.8 per cent and Pennsylvania's was 2.6.

West Virginia lost 2.9 per cent of its population, Arkansas 0.9 per cent and New Hampshire 0.7 per cent.

Alaska's population grew by 57.6 per cent, on an annual average basis, reaching 171,000 civilians on July 1 this year. Hawaii gained 14 per cent and Puerto Rico 0.7 per cent. Both the Canal Zone and the Virgin Islands lost population.

Among the nation's four main regions, the South was estimated to have had the biggest civilian population on July 1 this year—49,214,000, an increase of 5.5 per cent.

The West was the smallest, with a total of 21,940,000 civilians, but had the biggest percentage gain—13.9 per cent.

The North Central states, with 46,901,000 persons, showed a gain of 5.7 per cent and the Northeast states, with 41,029,000, gained 4.3 per cent.

GOLDSCHTEIN WILL RETURN FOR 'PRESENTATIONS' TO JURY

Assistant Attorney General Max H. Goldschtein will return to St. Louis Nov. 8 to make "several presentations" to the federal grand jury, United States Attorney Harry Richards announced yesterday.

Goldschtein, who was called to Washington earlier this month to handle grand jury investigations of Federal Housing Administration violations, still has some unfinished business here relating to racketeering and income tax evasion.

Goldschtein has assisted in presenting FHA matters before a grand jury in Washington and also is co-ordinating similar investigations throughout the country. Richards attended a meeting of United States attorneys at Washington.

RIVERVIEW GARDENS SCHOOL DISTRICT WILL GET U.S. AID

A total of $139,867 has been set aside by the United States Office of Education to assist the Riverview Gardens School District in St. Louis county in providing additional classroom space, it was announced yesterday.

E. M. Lemasters, superintendent of the district, said the money would be applied to the cost of a new high school building for which construction is planned on a tract northeast of the present high school at 587 Chambers road.

The district was one of seven in Missouri and 109 in the country which will receive funds to provide classroom accommodations for increased enrollments resulting from federal installations.

CHEST REACHES $1,706,453 MARK; 28 PCT. OF GOAL

City and County Divisions Hold Their First Report Meeting at Chase Hotel.

Community Chest subscriptions reached $1,706,453, or 28 per cent of the goal of $6,100,000, with first reports received from the county and city divisions at a meeting at Hotel Chase today.

The city division reported pledges totaling $55,339 and the county division $48,775. This amounted to 33 per cent of the city division goal and 20 per cent of the county division goal. A total of 755 women attended the meeting and were entertained by the Summer High School choir and with singing and dancing. Chapin S. Newhard, campaign chairman, and Richard E. Booth, executive director of the Community Chest, addressed the workers.

"One Hundred Per Center" badges were awarded team captains with quotas already made. Sheldon P. Collier, 10123 St. Charles road, one of the few male workers present, was presented with a bouquet as the county regional chairman with the highest percentage of quota in.

Collier was dubbed "Queen for a Day" along with Mrs. Frank F. Bottini, 2511 Sublette avenue, quota leader in the city division.

Two other report luncheons are scheduled for this week. The large firms, industry and manufacturing and trades divisions will meet Wednesday at the DeSoto Hotel, and the advance gifts, mercantile, and office and professional divisions will meet Thursday, also at the DeSoto.

Kenton R. Cravens, large firms chairman, announced gifts of $4363 from St. Louis Shipbuilding and Steel Co. and its employees, and $3465 from National Rejectors, Inc., and its officers.

Contributions totaling $1002 from Koken Companies, Inc., and its employees were reported by Eugene R. Kropp, industry and manufacturing chairman. The total was a 900 per cent increase over the amount contributed by the firm and its employees last year.

RED RADIO SAYS
HERMANN H. FIELD
HAS BEEN FREED

Herta, early in August 1949, to look for Noel, who had disappeared in Red Czechoslovakia the previous May.

Arrested in Poland.

Hermann Field flew to Warsaw Aug. 15, and was arrested the following week. Airline records were falsified to make it appear he had left the Polish capital for Prague, where Herta was waiting.

Herta Field disappeared four days after her brother-in-law was arrested.

Swiatlo said they were arrested on trumped-up "spy" charges. Informal sources in Washington reported last month that Mrs. Wallach is being held at a Red prison camp at Vorkuta, north of the Arctic circle in Soviet Siberia.

The Warsaw report was "wonderful" news for Hermann Field's wife Kate, who is now in London.

"I'm so happy I don't know what to say," she said. "Now at last I hope we'll see him for the first time since 1949. The boys and I are almost too happy for words."

By the Associated Press.

Dr. Elsie H. Field of Urbana, Ill., a sister of Hermann and Noel Field, said in Geneva she could not express her happiness over the announcement of her brother's release. She has conducted a five-year campaign to obtain the release of her brothers and spent the summer in Europe seeking information about them.

Dr. Field disclosed she had written a letter to Polish authorities recently asking for news of Hermann Field's whereabouts and requesting his release. She said the letter was written after Swiatlo made his statement to officials in Washington.

She said she wrote Hungarian authorities at the same time asking about Noel Field and his wife.

She received no reply to either letter, Dr. Field said.

She said she was going to Paris tomorrow and had planned to leave for her home in Urbana three days later. Now she is uncertain whether she will leave or wait in Paris for further information about her brother, she said.

In 1951 Dr. Field appealed to Americans "to destroy" her brother Noel until he was able to defend himself against charges of Communist ties.

On Aug. 2, 1951, Mrs. Hede Massing, an avowed former Russian spy, told a Senate Judiciary Committee that she recruited Noel Field into her espionage apparatus in Washington in 1934. He also was linked with Communists in other testimony.

Dr. Field said at that time: "There are many people, who are unwilling to condemn a man on charges as serious as those of being a Soviet spy, when the man himself cannot speak in his defense. The full facts will not be known until Noel Field can be given the opportunity to be heard in the United States. The only thing that makes sense to me is to make every effort to obtain his freedom and his return to this country."

U.S. Diplomats Not Surprised At Freeing of Field.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Diplomatic officials said today they were not surprised at Communist Poland's action in announcing the freeing of Hermann Field.

Several hours after the announcement, this Government still had received no official word. The State Department said the United States embassy in Warsaw was seeking information, and that it could be assumed the embassy was prepared to arrange for Field's return to the United States immediately.

The lack of surprise here was owing to a feeling that the Polish Government was put in an impossible position, when Josef Swiatlo, a top official of their secret police who had fled to the West, disclosed Sept. 28 that Field had been arrested in Poland. The Poles previously had denied knowledge of his whereabouts.

From that moment, it had appeared that the least painful course open to the Poles was to free Field with the accompanying statement that the charges that led to his arrest were "framed up by an American agent" and that Swiatlo himself was the agent.

Such accusations were made in the Warsaw radio broadcast announcing Field's release.

The conditions encountered, Judge Blair told reporters he was impressed by the cleanliness and general good condition of the kitchens and the personnel handling food.

Until the outburst today, order had prevailed at the prison since Saturday. There was a brief demonstration at 11 o'clock last night, as the guard was being changed, when inmates in B- and C cellblock screamed and rattled bars.

The outburst lasted only a few minutes, however, and the remainder of the night passed quietly at the prison. The tension that had been felt throughout the institution appeared eased today.

Two machine guns were mounted at strategic positions within the walls, and state troopers stayed on watch in units of 12 to 15 in the deputy warden's office. Members of Troop F remained on the alert, ready to rush to the prison in an emergency from their headquarters here.

Whitecotton on Trip. Thomas E. Whitecotton, director of the state department of corrections, went to Philadelphia yesterday to attend the convention of the American Prison Association at the suggestion of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

It is expected that Whitecotton, at the convention, will speak to several penal experts whom Gov. Donnelly is considering as members of a survey group he is to name to study operations and needs of the prison.

The Governor said Warden Joseph E. Ragen of the Joliet and Statesville prisons in Illinois definitely would serve, and that Edward R. Cass of New York, general secretary of the American Prison Association, had been sent an invitation to appear at Donnelly's request recently looked over prison facilities here.

Although some veteran observers thought the latest outburst was a planned move on the part of the convicts, Warden Eidson expressed the opinion that "it just happened."

He said "some silly kid just started something."

Eidson told reporters there had been no negotiations with prisoners over food or other matters, and that none had been sought.

Trouble Begins in Dining Hall. The trouble Saturday began in two dining halls as convicts filed in for their last meal of the day. One of the inmates yelled "flat dog," apparently in protest against bologna sandwiches given the men to take to their cells.

"I think the food is good," the warden declared. "It is the best we can provide with the funds we have available."

He said the prison has been trying for some time to employ a dietitian, but has been handicapped by lack of money to get a qualified man.

The wife of Joseph R. Coffey, the convict killed Saturday, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that her husband had been "very bitter about the food" at the prison.

Mrs. Anne Coffey, who took a job as a waitress here to be near her husband after he was sentenced to six years for burglary and larceny in Butler county, said he often complained the food was "very unappetizing and not prepared right."

Coffey Killed by Guard.

Coffey, shot and killed by a guard as he stood at the top of a stairway with other prisoners throwing furniture down on guards, was not the type of man to lead such an uprising, his wife asserted.

"He just grew more quiet the longer he stayed in prison," said his wife, who prepared to take the body back to Chicago, their home. "He was not the kind of man to stir up any trouble. He was not the leader type."

For today's breakfast, which passed without incident, the convicts had rice with raisins and brown gravy, biscuits and syrup, butter and coffee.

Sunday's breakfast consisted of rice with cream gravy, bread, butter, jelly and coffee. For the other meal yesterday, the inmates had baked ham, mashed potatoes, stewed corn, hot buns, coffee and cookies.

As usual on weekends, they were given sandwiches to take to their cells for a last meal.

Eidson said baked ham is occasionally served to the convicts, but not often. He added, however, that the prison has made no changes in its food program since the disturbances began.

Air of Cheerfulness.

As the inmates filed into the dining halls yesterday, they showed an air of cheerfulness apparent to all observers. Prison officials hoped it was not a deception preceding another riot.

Some grumbling was noted because of the suspension of privileges, particularly when it included even the removal of electric irons given to certain convicts in each cellblock for pressing purposes.

Warden Eidson said today that, if no further disturbance occurs, visiting privileges may be restored tomorrow and recreational periods later this week.

Of the 37 inmates injured Saturday, nine were shot by guards. Most of the others were believed hurt in a pitched battle between white and Negro convicts that started moments after white prisoners began rioting in a dining hall. No one was seriously injured.

Governor Is Irritated.

Gov. Donnelly became irritated at his press conference today when he was asked why restrictions had been imposed on newspaper reporters and radio men following the latest uprising.

When informed of orders issued by Warden Eidson barring newsmen from the interior of the prison, Donnelly snapped: "I don't blame him. I am not going to give you any privileges either. There's been too much of this stuff."

The Governor has been smarting under criticism of conditions at the penitentiary. He charged that Saturday's action resulted from a local radio broadcast in which a former prison kitchen supervisor criticized the quality of food served convicts.

Inmates to Be Questioned.

Prison authorities are expected to begin an inquiry soon to fix responsibility for the latest outburst. Among the first to be questioned will be 40 men who were held in a dining hall by four armed guards until assistance arrived. Leaders of the rioting among inmates of B and C cellblock were believed to be in this group.

Eidson said prisoners found to have been involved, either as ringleaders or participants, would lose "good time" provisions that would ordinarily shorten their sentences.

An investigation that followed the Sept. 22 riot, which resulted in deaths of four inmates, injury to 30 prisoners and guards, and damage estimated at more than $3,000,000, led to murder charges against six convicts.

These six, taken for safekeeping to the Springfield (Mo.) Medical Center maintained by the United States Bureau of Prisons, are to appear Friday for a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Foster S. Wheatley here. They are expected to ask for continuances and severances.

Quiet also prevailed yesterday and today at the women's prison, where two small fires were started Saturday night, apparently in sympathy with the disturbances in the men's prison, one-half mile away.

Glass has been received at the prison for replacing the thousands of panes of glass in last month's riot. Cutting of the glass to pane size has been started and officials hope to have the windows repaired before cold weather sets in.

BONN, FRANCE
OF SAAR ACCORD

selves to employ every effort to develop the Saar economically. The agreement provides that the present French Saar economic union be embodied in a new French Saar economic treaty.

Eventually Germany is to enjoy the same economic relationship as France with the Saarland, but that development must not, under the agreement, endanger the existing French-Saar economic or currency union.

Both nations agreed to propose to other European governments arrangements for Saar representation in the Council of Europe, the Schuman plan coal-steel pool and the Western European Union.

The Saar's participation in Europe's defense will be defined in a later treaty within the framework of the Western European Union.

The agreement grants full freedom to all political parties, including the now barred German parties, and freedom to all newspapers and for all public gatherings in the territory.

"All interference from abroad aimed at influencing public opinion in the Saar" is barred.

The agreement provides for measures in the immediate future to extend trade between West Germany and the Saar.

It said both France and Germany would recommend to the other members of the six-nation Schuman plan organization that the coal-steel pool headquarters be moved from Luxembourg to Saarbrücken, the capital of the Saar.

Cabinet Called.

Adenauer called an extraordinary session of his cabinet earlier today to map strategy for getting the Paris agreements, including the Saar settlement, through parliament. The vigorous, 78-year-old Chancellor was criticized severely yesterday following his return from Paris because of concessions made to France on the Saar issue.

But Adenauer had the strength needed in the Bundestag (lower house) to ratify the agreements which will permit Germany to enter the North Atlantic alliance and contribute 500,000 soldiers to Western defense.

Heinrich von Brentano, Christian Democrat floor leader, said the party will use the majority in the Bundestag "ruthlessly if the others cannot bring themselves to support our policy."

Adenauer sought to find some way of mollifying his opposition before leaving tomorrow for Washington, where he will confer with President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. The Chancellor will receive an honorary degree from Columbia University while he is in New York.

The Social Democrats denounced the Paris agreements as unacceptable and the moderate rightist Free Democrats and the small Refugee party openly criticized Adenauer's action.

Erle Ollenauer, Social Democratic leader who flew to Paris to confer with Adenauer before the pacts were signed Saturday, said the Chancellor broke an agreement made with leaders of other parties in the coalition.

Ollenauer charged that Adenauer's agreements were much too sweeping for the French, with whom the Saar has been linked economically.

The chairman of the second strongest party in Adenauer's government, the Free Democrats, indicated that party may seek a high court ruling on the legality of the Saar accord. The chairman, Thomas Dehler, told a Free Democratic convention at Weizlar the accord possibly violated the Bonn constitution because, in effect, it might prevent German reunification. Such a test, before the Karlsruhe Constitutional Court, would threaten a long delay.

RISE IN VOTE REGISTRATIONS

BOSTON, Oct. 25 (UP)—Massachusetts Secretary of State Edward J. Cronin announced today that total registration was higher than in the last off-year elections.

Cronin said there were 2,523,515 voters registered in the state as compared with a total of 2,475,396 eligible to vote in 1950, the last non-presidential year. The total of registered voters for the presidential election two years ago was 2,666,025, Cronin said.

TWO WOMEN OFF TENTATIVE JURY FOR DR. SHEPPARD

ment. She admitted she was impressed by the fact the defendant's life is at stake.
The defendant is Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard, 30-year-old osteopath who is charged with first-degree murder in the bludgeoning of his pregnant wife Marilyn, 31, last July 4 in their suburban Bay Village home.

New Defense Motions.
Defense attorneys renewed again today their motions to have the trial delayed or moved to another county, but were turned down by Judge Edward Blythin.

William J. Corrigan, speaking for the defense, supported the move with arguments that "tremendous coverage" is being given the trial by newspapers, radio and television stations.
But once again the judge said "we can't control the publicity in this case."

Both the prosecution and the defense questioned Solli.

Corrigan asked him:

"Did you ever make the statement that if you got on the jury you would burn Sam Sheppard?"

Replied Solli, "Aw, no sir."

Corrigan said he and the wife of Defense Attorney Fred Gar-more received telephone tips to that effect, from a woman who said her husband works at the "same place you do."

The juror replied, "I must have a lot of enemies."

Assistant Prosecutor John J. Mahon said that he also had received a phone call, but to the effect that Solli "would never be for a death sentence."

But Solli declared, "No sir, I never said that."

He was told he could return to the jury box.

Jurors Related by Marriage.

Solli was questioned as the second week of the trial began because it had been learned he and another tentative juror were related by marriage.

Edmund L. Verlinger, 29, says his wife's uncle is a brother-in-law of Solli. Verlinger said the relationship would not affect his judgment.

Each time the number of jurors is reduced to 11 by a challenge, process of seating another juror begins again with the examination of prospective jurors. Each side gets six peremptory challenges.

After 12 jurors are selected an alternate is chosen. Judge Blythin has indicated he may want two alternates. Each side gets two peremptory challenges on an alternate or alternates.

6 Women, 5 Men at Present.

The lineup on the 11 remaining jurors tentatively selected is six women, all housewives, and five men.

As the day's session opened, Dr. Sheppard sat for a few moments with his hands clasped, his eyes closed and his head tilted toward the ceiling.

He appeared to be thoroughly composed.

Verlinger was seated late last Tuesday as prospective juror No. 3. A hardware store manager who saw combat in World War II, he is married and has two sons, 3 and 5.

On Wednesday, Solli became tentative juror No. 4. He is a small, graying man with three children, who works as a track foreman for a railroad.

The other tentative jurors are: Gerald L. Liederbach, 40, letter carrier.

Mrs. Luella Williams, Negro.

Mrs. Margaret E. Adams.

Mrs. Beatrice Ornstein.

Mrs. Louise K. Feuchter.

Melvin C. Holliday, 40, a photostat operator.

Mrs. Anna W. Foote.

Howard L. Barrish, 38, time-keeper for a steel plant.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Borke.

Another trial week could be consumed in the tedious sponsoring, and Mahon said he believed it would be Friday afternoon before the jury is complete.

Corrigan gave no indication of whether he planned to use all of his six challenges. Mahon said the prosecution would use "some . . . I don't know how many."

Reporters Visit Corrigan.

Aggressive and sometimes gruff in the courtroom, Corrigan relaxed and read poetry to reporters who called at his 135-year-old farm home in suburban East Cleveland yesterday.

"Poor devil," he said, referring to Dr. Sheppard, "down there in jail, not knowing what's going to happen to him, while we're here taking pictures and talking."

Later, he pushed a legal notebook across his dining room table. His writing in the book was titled "Notes on Jurors."

"If you'll excuse me," he told the reporters, "I've got a little law work here."

In the county jail, Dr. Sheppard refused to comment on a story in a Cleveland newspaper about his dead wife. The story related details about her life as recalled by a cousin, Dr. Keith Weigle. Dr. Weigle called her witty and "one of the most human persons I ever knew."

A jailer delivered a reporter's note asking for comment, but Dr. Sheppard sent it back after scrawling on the back: "No comment at this time. S.S."

Says Intruder Killed Wife.

The defendant claims it was a bushy-haired intruder who struck his wife 27 or more blows and left their bedroom spattered with blood.

A defense source yesterday said its attorneys had not been allowed to question Miss Susan Hayes, a 24-year-old hospital technician who admitted being intimate more than once with Dr. Sheppard last March in California.

The young woman's family, it was said, refused to let defense counsel approach her.

The auburn-haired Miss Hayes, expected to be a star prosecution witness, knew the osteopath at Bay View Hospital in Bay Village and later in California.

She remained with her parents after voluntarily returning from California to tell her story to Cleveland police.

Contempt Citation Against Man Over 'Crank' Letters.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 25 (UP)—Common Pleas Judge Edward Blythin today ordered a contempt of court citation against a "crank" who wrote letters to two tentative members of the Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard jury critical of court operations.

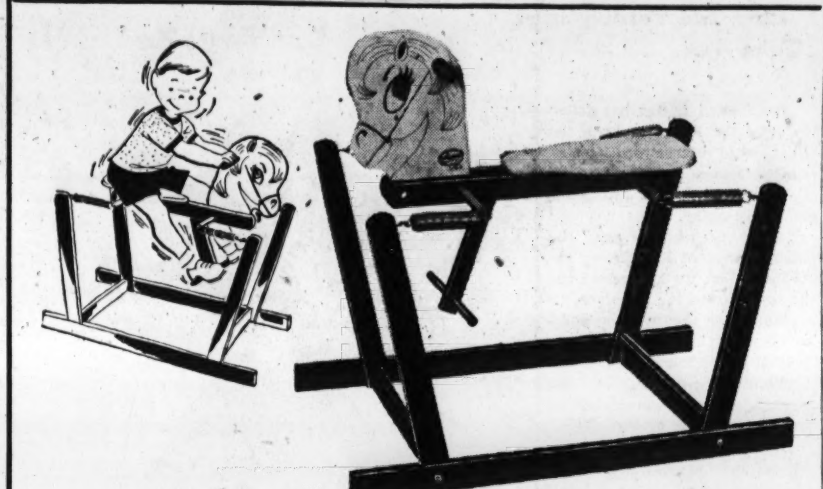

Blythin emphasized the letters had "nothing to do" with the July 4 killing of Sheppard's pregnant wife, Marilyn. He identified the letter-writer as Norbert F. Connors of suburban Berea, who recently was convicted of assault and battery on his wife.

Melvin C. Holliday and Thomas J. Solli, tentatively seated last week as members of the jury to hear the Sheppard trial, said they had received a letter from Connors in which he criticized court operations.

St. Louis Success Story
How capable management, plus a flexible, modern Commercial Loan, brought outstanding success to a leading St. Louis firm.
In 1950, Mr. Laddie Hamilton, president of Ozark Air Lines, looking to future growth and expansion, discussed his company's need for additional capital with Mr. Jack Butler, vice-president in charge of our Commercial Loan Department. After a thorough analysis of the situation and confidence of Ozark's management, Bank of St. Louis not only granted a loan for new planes and equipment, but provided additional cash for operating funds as well.
Since then, Ozark Air Lines has increased its stations and personnel ten-fold . . . its number of planes three-fold . . . serves 33 cities in 9 states . . . flies over 25 million passenger-miles per year and, according to the Civil Aeronautics Board, is one of the fastest growing air lines in the United States.
We are proud to have had a part in this outstanding St. Louis Success Story and invite your inquiries whenever your firm may require similar assistance. You will always find us ready and more than happy to help you with your financial problems.

WARNS DEMOCRATS WOULD REHIRE RISKS

Nixon Says Some Opponents
Are Riding on President's Coattails.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. Oct. 25 (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon says that if a Congress of Adlai Stevenson's choosing is elected "the security risks which have been fired by the Eisenhower Administration will all be hired back."

Nixon, in a press conference here yesterday, also charged that some campaigning Democrats are trying to "ride on President Eisenhower's coattails."

The Vice President said the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate "has not changed since he testified for Alger Hiss."

Return to Truman Policy.

"Stevenson, by failing to retract his attack on the security risk program," Nixon said, "is advocating a return to those policies of Truman."

"Stevenson's blindness on the security risk program gives the voters a powerful argument to reject his proposal (to return to a Democratic Congress)."

When asked who specifically was trying to ride the President's coattails, Nixon replied a Democratic Senator from Montana (he did not name him) is campaigning with an autographed photograph of the President and himself, although he has voted against the Administration programs 75 per cent of the time.

Murray Runs in Montana. (Senator James E. Murray (Dem.) is the only Senator campaigning for re-election in Montana.)

Nixon's criticism of Stevenson was in answer to Stevenson's statement Saturday that the Republican high command has turned the campaign into an "ugly slugfest" under the "boisterous" leadership of Nixon.

The vice president flew here from Salt Lake City, Utah, where earlier yesterday he described the new western European Defense Union agreement as the "most effective blow that has been struck for freedom since World War II."

DIXON-YATES DEAL IS DENOUNCED BY FORMER FPC HEAD

First Move in 'Conspiracy to Take Over TVA Yardstick,' Leland Olds Says.

By GEORGE H. HALL
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 — Le-land Olds, former chairman of the Federal Power Commission, said today that the proposed Dixon-Yates contract is part of the first move "in a conspiracy to undermine, disintegrate and ultimately to take over the Tennessee Valley Authority yardstick power business."

"First, Dixon-Yates," said Olds in an address to the Women's National Democratic Club, "then other private power supply, then a slow upping of the cost of TVA power supply to its distributors, then proof to the public that the TVA is no longer a symbol of lower rates and larger use of electricity, so, step by step, the power trust wins without ever facing an all-out open battle."

Reviews Testimony. Olds reviewed charges made recently before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee by J. D. Stietenroth, former secretary-treasurer of Mississippi Power & Light Co., a subsidiary of one of the partners in the Dixon-Yates combine; Arthur E. McLean, president of the Commercial National Bank of Little Rock, Ark., and former Gov. Sid McMath of Arkansas. These men charged Mississippi and Arkansas Power & Light Co., an affiliate, with political activity and with setting high rates to consumers.

The public-private power partnership program of President Eisenhower "was born of just such doings on a national scale as we have caught a glimpse of in the Dixon-Yates backyard," Olds said. "It was born of the gigantic mass-mind-conditioning campaign of the utility industry which created the very atmosphere of the 1952 presidential election."

The purpose of the "Eisenhower-power trust partnership deal," Olds said, is "simply to start eliminating TVA as an embarrassing yardstick of construction efficiency, of labor relations, of operating costs, of electric rates, of expanding consumer use of electricity and of broader markets for electric appliances."

'Worst Site Ever.'

Olds said that the Dixon-Yates combine proposes to build a $107,250,000 steam electric generating plant "on probably the worst site ever proposed for a large steam plant in this country." The plant would be built at West Memphis, Ark., to supply power as a replacement for

15,000 Viet Nam Catholics Flee In Fleet of Small Rafts, Junks

Escape From Red-Held Territory Prompted by Appearance of French Naval Vessels.

SAIGON, Indochina, Oct. 25 (AP)—About 15,000 Viet Namese Roman Catholics escaped to freedom from Communist-dominated North Indochina today by heading to sea in a fleet of small rafts and junks.

The mass break began yesterday from the coastal fishing village of Van Ly, close to the Catholic center of Bui Chu and Phat Diem in the south of the Tonkin delta. The move was prompted by the appearance of a small fleet of French naval vessels outside the three-mile limit.

Flying the white and yellow papal flag, the refugees carried their meager household goods and even a few water buffalo in their wild rush.

French naval units, working around the clock, picked them up as soon as their overcrowded craft crossed the three-mile limit. The Jules Verne, a former submarine tender, and another French ship took many aboard. Two American-donated LSM's loaded 1300 each.

TVA power now furnished the Atomic Energy Commission.

The contract, which has become an issue in the Nov. 2 election, has been approved as to form by the agencies concerned, but has not been signed. The joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy will hold a hearing on it Nov. 4.

BRIDGE TEAM WINS STATE TITLE FOR SECOND YEAR

The bridge team headed by Mr. and Mrs. David C. Carter, 5377 Delmar boulevard, demonstrated its championship caliber last night by winning the team-of-four title in the Missouri state tournament for the second consecutive year.

F. A. Bombeck, Kansas City; Leo Well, 827 Westwood drive, Clayton, and Robert Nail, Wichita, Kan., were other members of the team which retained the Dutton Bowl in a close contest at Hotel Lennox.

William Shirley, 729 Lexington avenue, Oakland, won the open individual championship. John E. Simon, Park Plaza Hotel, and Philip Sincoff, 8825 Washington avenue, University City, took the open pair event.

In a special pair game last night, the north-and-south section was led by Miss Delma Trousdale and Sid Shapiro; east and west, by Oscar Klayman and Abe Weinreb. In another pair game, Ben E. Cohen and Clyde M. Martin Jones and Mrs. Lee Wilkinson won north and south; Grasiender, east and west.

30 PAINTINGS BY BARKER AND FETT TO BE DISPLAYED

An exhibition of about 30 pastel and water color paintings by Walter Barker and William Fett, faculty members of the Washington University School of Fine Arts, will open at Givens Hall gallery tomorrow through Nov. 13.

The display will be divided about equally between recent unframed pastel and ink paintings by Barker and older water color paintings by Fett. Barker, a graduate of the university's art school, studied also at the University of Iowa, Indiana University and the University of North Carolina, where he also taught, and on a foreign travel fellowship in Mexico.

Fett studied at the Art Institute of Chicago and also in Mexico on a fellowship. In 1950 he won a Fulbright fellowship for painting and study in Italy. Works by both artists are owned by general public and private collections and have been seen in group and one-man exhibitions.

Mexican Red, 9 Others Jailed. MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25 (AP)—Ten men, including Dionisio Encinas, secretary general of the Mexican Communist party, were sentenced yesterday to 15 days in jail on charges of carrying arms. They had been arrested by Government agents trying to head off disturbances over a gasoline price increase. Three women arrested at the same time were freed.

American leaders have chosen the course that would lead to Germany being "torn in two parts for a long time," the paper said, and "are making all efforts to depend the dangerous division of Germany."

Pravda charged that the documents for rearming West Germany which were signed at Paris run contrary to disarmament proposals now before the United Nations.

LOS ANGELES SMOG LIFTS AFTER 18 DAYS OVER CITY

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25 (UP)—The smog, which blanketed the Los Angeles area for 18 consecutive days, lifted temporarily today but the furious debate over what to do about smog still raged.

Some smog prevailed in the downtown areas yesterday, but by noon breezes had swept the skies fairly clean. Bright, clear skies, with a touch of clouds, were predicted for today.

Gov. Goodwin J. Knight said the present respite from the smog siege "should not be the cause for complacency" and renewed his request that the oil industry shut down its refineries here for a test period to determine the "extent of the industry's responsibility in this very serious problem."

However, Knight admitted he had no legal authority to enforce the closing of the refineries. The industry flatly refused his proposal earlier.

HENNINGS SAYS U.S. FAILED TO TAKE INITIATIVE

Senator Asserts Russians Won at Geneva, on EDC, and Possibly in Viet Nam.

The United States has failed to seize the initiative from the Russians in international affairs, United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., of St. Louis, said here today.

"Only 10 months ago," he said, "President Eisenhower announced that we had seized the initiative from the Russians."

"Following this, we saw diplomatic defeat at Geneva, the rejection of the European Defense Community program by the French, and now we are told of the possible loss of Viet Nam."

Hennings spoke at the convention of the National Association of Independent Insurers at Hotel Chase. Reviewing recent developments in foreign policy he cited several instances of "confusion," saying it is difficult at times to determine just what the Republican policy is, "and who is shaping it."

Two Bright Spots.

Against a background he described as "dismal," Senator Hennings found two bright spots—the Nine-Power London Agreement, "which came with anguish out of the defeat of our policy on EDC," and the South-East Asia Treaty Organization.

But he said the London agreement "was not our achievement; it was the achievement of the British. And as for SEATO, he said: "You will recall that among Asians it is referred to as the 'white man's protective association'."

Hennings spent several weeks in Europe last summer. "It seems to me," he said, "that the forces of history have brought about a state of co-existence between us and the Russians," and "we must find a way of persuading them to submit to control by the United Nations."

"The United States," he went on, "should act in every way to strengthen the prestige of the United Nations, making it an effective instrument for settlement of international conflicts and maintenance of peace. This implies that we cannot think of withdrawing from the United Nations when decisions go against us."

Warns Americans.

If the American people attempt to escape from "implacable problems of foreign policy" by "retreating into our own shell or through some other sham remedies, ruin will be our destiny," the Senator said.

Turning to the future of Western Germany, he said "we must not overlook the possibility" that they "may eventually make a deal with the Russians. . . . We know of Russian overtures to West Germany and we know they have been steadfastly resisted by the present democratic government, but the future is quite uncertain."

In the Far East, he said, "the Eisenhower Administration has pursued policies concerning Formosa that have been contradictory and confusing."

Hennings said it was internal weakness and corruption that brought on the defeat of Chiang Kai-shek, and that it is "palpably absurd" that he can conquer Red China.

CHURCH GROUP AGAINST 'RIGHT TO WORK' BILLS

More than 600 members attending the fourth annual convention of the St. Louis Archdiocese Council of Catholic Men yesterday voted unanimously to oppose "right to work" legislation on the ground that it conflicts with papal encyclicals advocating the right of working men to organize.

George E. Helfers, 13 West Geyer lane, Frontenac, an attorney, was elected to a one-year term as council president. Other officers: George H. Schroer, Cuba, Mo., vice president; Francis C. Flynn, Clayton, corresponding secretary; Dr. Louis T. Schuermann, secretary, and J. Stuart MacLellan, Brentwood, marshal. The archdiocese includes the eastern half of Missouri.

BRITAIN'S DOCK STRIKE SPREADS TO MANCHESTER

Quit Jobs — Walkout
Now in Its Fourth Week.

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Britain's waterfront strike today spread to Manchester, where 500 of the port's 2300 dock workers quit their jobs.

This latest development left 44,500 of this maritime nation's 76,000 cargo workers idle. The strike entered its fourth week today, and no settlement was in sight.

The Manchester stevedores walked off the docks after speakers urged them to "save their faces" by lending support to striking dockers at other ports.

Walkout Continued.
Strikers voted at meetings in London and Liverpool to continue the walkout. The Southampton strikers also met but deferred action until another meeting Wednesday. The British liner Queen Mary is due at Southampton late tonight.

Pickets appeared at the cargo-choked docks today for the first time since the work stoppage began.

Prime Minister Churchill scheduled another cabinet meeting tonight to deal with the situation.

The National Federation of Wholesale Grocers warned that stocks of imported bacon, cheese, butter, eggs and tinned fruits were running low and said the situation would become serious if the work stoppage continues until next weekend.

The strike has paralyzed the big port of London and crippled operations at six other important ports, including the key freight-handling cities of Liverpool and Hull. More than 300 ships are idle in the ports. Cargoes worth an estimated £120,000,000 ($336,000,000) are being held up.

A committee of government ministers which has been keeping an eye on essential imports scheduled another meeting for today. It was expected the group would recommend the use of troops as stevedores if the strike continues beyond Wednesday.

The dockers walked off their jobs in support of a demand for the right to refuse overtime work. All work between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. is termed overtime, regardless of whether it is performed in addition to the normal eight-hour working day. Employers insist that the waterfront labor force must be available at odd hours because the landing and sailing times of ships are affected by tides.

Calling troops to work the docks has been held up by Labor Minister Sir Walter Monckton in the hope that appeals by union leaders would start a drift back to work.

Singer Has a Baby.

NATIONALISTS RAID RED CHINA ISLAND, BURN BARRACKS

TAIPEH, Oct. 25 (AP)—Nationalist guerrillas from the Tachen islands Saturday raided a Communist island, burned down barracks and inflicted scores of casualties, the official Central Daily News said yesterday.

The newspaper said the raiders captured four Communists, killed more than 20 and wounded 60 more before withdrawing. Nationalist casualties were listed as one seriously and several slightly wounded.

The island is Yangchiaoyu (Sheep Born island) near the coast about 90 miles south of the Tachens. The Tachens are 200 miles north of Formosa.

Nationalist quarters were silent about a Peiping broadcast saying 15 Nationalist raiders hit the Fukien province coast opposite Formosa last Friday under cover of two warships which fired 200 shells.

PILOT, SON KILLED IN FLIGHT TO SCATTER ASHES OF FRIEND

BRISBANE, Australia, Oct. 25 (AP)—Just as the "Flying Milkman" of Brisbane was about to scatter the ashes of a friend over the grazing land he had loved, the single-engine plane struck the top of a tree and plunged into a muddy river bed.

The pilot, Stanley Porter, and his 13-year-old son Keith were killed in the crash Saturday. Rescuers managed to pull his 10-year-old son, Desmond, out of the wreck unhurt before it submerged. Police and volunteers were unable to retrieve the wreckage and the bodies of the two from the deep mud until yesterday.

Porter, a veteran of 23 years of flying, was known as the "Flying Milkman" because he owned a dairy farm and had his own plane and airstrip.

WHY GO HALF-WAY

when you switch cigarettes?

when you go to a filter
.....or to king size
.....or to both
you're still only going half-way

Here's something every smoker ought to know.

We remove nicotine and natural tar from the tobacco before King Sanos are made.

So of course you get less nicotine and tar in the smoke of King Sanos than you get in the smoke of any other cigarette.

King size helps. Filters help. And you get both in King Sanos.

And you also get wonderful satisfaction from every puff.

But you get something more that's worth a lot—and costs only a few extra pennies a day.

So why not go all the way—and try a pack or a carton of King Sanos?

Filter Tip? Yes.
King Size? Yes.
Less nicotine and tar in the tobacco itself?
You're completely right.

H. W. GRUNEWALD AMONG 8 INDICTED IN U.S. TAX INQUIRY

Plot to Corrupt Revenue Men, Induce Perjury Before New York Grand Jury Charged.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—Henry W. Grunewald, Washington contact man, and seven other men were indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice.

The indictment charged the eight conspired to obstruct justice by corrupting Internal Revenue Service officials and inducing witnesses to commit perjury before a grand jury investigating income tax frauds.

Immediately after the indictment was handed up, Federal Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ordered bench warrants issued for the arrest of Grunewald and Daniel A. Bolich, former assistant commissioner of internal revenue.

Six Enter Not Guilty Pleas. Pleas of not guilty to the indictment were entered by the other defendants, Max Steinberg, Harry T. Scherm, Max Halperin, Milton Hoffman, Irving Davis and Samuel Schopick.

Grunewald, alleged Washington influence peddler, already faces prosecution on a number of charges.

A federal indictment returned last month in Brooklyn accused the one-time capital "mystery man" of perjury himself five times during a tax scandal investigation. That indictment charged him with lying in denying that he ever was paid to exert influence toward settlement of certain tax cases, or that he knew anything about them.

Grunewald, 62 years old, also is under indictment on charges of conspiring to defraud the Government and of lying in testimony before a House Ways and Means subcommittee.

Bolich Retired in 1951. Bolich, 57, of Brooklyn, retired in November, 1951, as senior tax adviser in the planning division of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington.

Details of Charges.

The indictment, which supersedes an earlier one in which Grunewald and Bolich had been named as co-conspirators, but not as defendants, charges Grunewald and Bolich with conspiring to cause Government employees to commit perjury, with violating internal revenue laws by giving the involved taxpayers an opportunity to defraud the Government, with presenting false affidavits in the tax cases and with obstructing justice by counseling witnesses to give false evidence to a Brooklyn grand jury in connection with the cases.

The seven-count indictment carries penalties totaling 31 years in prison and fines of $35,000 for each defendant on conviction.

The indictment listed as overt acts alleged payments of $100,000 and $60,000 to Grunewald in 1948 by Halperin and alleged delivery by Halperin of $40,000 to Scherm.

The indictment for the first time linked Scherm with the long-litigated tax cases. He was indicted Sept. 8 on a charge of filing a false statement with the Internal Revenue Service regarding his own finances.

Alleged Plan of Operation. The indictment charged that Grunewald, Bolich and the other two tax officials steered taxpayers to the Schopick and Davis law firm with statements that the firm had influence with the Bureau and could obtain special considerations for taxpayers regardless of the merits of their cases. The indictment said that Bolich, Steinberg and Scherm would then "corruptly render decisions" in such cases.

"It was a part of the conspiracy that the defendants would obtain sums of money to procure corrupt disposition of tax matters," the indictment said.

The six defendants, excluding Grunewald and Bolich, appeared in court and pleaded not guilty to the charges. Defense counsel was given two weeks to file motions. No trial date was set.

The tax cases involved a Gotham beef company and Patullo Modes, a defunct New York dress firm.

RUSSIA TO IMPORT 12 TIMES AS MUCH MEAT AS IN 1953

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Russia has suddenly become a major importer of meat, the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

The Soviets have contracted to buy more than 240,000,000 pounds of frozen beef, mutton, pork and other primary meat products from non-Communist countries in 1954—more than 12 times the 19,200,000 pounds imported last year.

The department, reporting the figures in its publication "Foreign Crops and Markets," said this would make Russia the third largest importer of meat in the world. Only England and the United States buy more.

The increase will provide a little more than a pound of extra meat per person for the large Russian population.

"The increased imports stem from a desire on the part of the Soviet Government to raise general living standards," the survey said. One department expert said Russia may be buying more meat in an effort to preserve and build up her livestock herds after an extremely severe winter last year.

Carling will take up the brewing of Stag beer, along with other Carling products, in the Griesedieck Western plants at Belleville and St. Louis.

Actual transfer of brewery assets will take place next Monday, Jones said. A detailed report on the sale and on the company's plans is expected the first week in December, he said. WILLIAMS ASSAILS COUNTY'S LACK OF OUTSIDE AUDIT

Failure of the Republican administration in St. Louis county to have a complete outside audit of all offices was criticized yesterday by Daniel P. Williams, Democratic nominee for county supervisor.

In a speech at a picnic of the Airport Township Democratic Club at Knights of Columbus grounds, on Graham road, he reproved his G.O.P. opponent, Luman F. Matthews, for not ordering an independent audit. Williams, a certified public accountant, said Pittsburgh had recovered $7,000,000 through such a check.

If elected, he said he would have a complete outside audit. "St. Louis has a periodic independent audit," Williams said. "Officials of Clayton, Kirkwood, University City and Webster Groves have also seen the need for an independent audit."

ALI HEADS NEW GOVERNMENT IN PAKISTAN CRISIS

Governor General Dissolves Assembly That Failed to Draft Constitution.

KARACHI, Oct. 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Mohammed Ali headed a new and more powerful government today while a "state of emergency" was maintained to cope with Pakistan's disturbed political situation.

The Prime Minister named a new seven-man cabinet last night after Gov. Gen. Ghulam Mohammed dismissed all his previous ministers and dissolved the constituent assembly. This body had served as a national legislature during the seven years of Pakistan's independence.

In declaring a state of emergency, the Governor General turned full administrative power over to the cabinet. Demonstrations and meetings of more than five persons were prohibited and censorship was imposed on the local press.

Visit Cut Short.

All cut short a visit to the United States and arrived back in Karachi Saturday, a few hours before the drastic measures were announced.

The Prime Minister took the Foreign Ministry himself. He named Gen. Mohammed Ayub Khan, commander in chief of the army, as Defense Minister. Gen. Iskander Mirza, the present governor of East Pakistan, was named Interior Minister.

Like the Governor General, Ali was critical of the assembly. He said in his broadcast that its recent actions had "provoked a storm in the country" and "caused internal strain and bickerings."

After seven years, the assembly's work of drafting a constitution was still unfinished, snarled by strong antagonisms and rivalry among different provinces and language groups.

All's own Moslem League dominated the assembly, holding 58 of the 78 seats. It was largely instrumental in winning Pakistan's independence.

The opposition, including the United Front which won an overwhelming victory in provincial elections in East Pakistan last spring, had called for new elections, charging the assembly no longer reflected true political sentiment in the country.

Ghulam Mohammed said in his proclamation that the assembly had "lost the confidence of the people and can no longer function." He promised new elections "as early as possible."

WOUNDED YOUTH ADMITS PARTICIPATING IN HOLDUP

Two youth were arrested yesterday on charges of holding up the St. Louis Pharmacy, 4200 St. Louis avenue, Saturday night, after one of them showed up at Homer G. Phillips Hospital with a gunshot wound of the left side.

In the holdup, Police Officer Raymond Callahan, off duty and tending the store for the proprietor, fired one shot at the holdup men as one of them scooped $75 from the cash register. One of the youths fired one shot back and they escaped the officer. When Raymond Echols, Negro, 19-years old, showed up at the hospital for treatment, he was questioned and admitted taking part in the holdup, police said. Echols gave an address in the 1400 block of Granville place.

Police then arrested Clarence Jefferson, 17, a Negro, who was located playing a bugle and marching with a drum and bugle corps at Washington and Pendleton avenues. Jefferson, who said he lives in the 4400 block of St. Ferdinand avenue, also admitted participating in the holdup, police said.

13 AMERICANS NOW SERVING TERMS IN JAPANESE PRISONS

TOKYO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Thirteen United States service men now are serving terms in Japanese prisons after being convicted in Japanese courts, the Justice Ministry reported yesterday.

Two drew 15-year sentences for murder. Most of the others are serving three to five years. Under an agreement signed last year, Japan can try members of United States forces for offenses committed outside their camps while off duty.

Disgruntled members of the legislative body were reported preparing to ask the federal court for a ruling on whether the Governor General had the authority to disband the body. Legal experts in the assembly said the Governor General's order did not actually dissolve the body but merely halted its functioning.

The political crisis had been building up for Ali for some time. The United Front victory in East Pakistan last spring was a blow. Communist influence was blamed at the time for East Pakistan riots in which some 500 persons were killed. Two weeks ago Ali lost the support of two of the nation's seven provinces—the Northwest Frontier province and the Punjab.

While Ali was in Washington, the Governor General lifted restrictions on office holding for four former provincial ministers who had been convicted on charges of corruption. The four were political foes of the Prime Minister.

It was then that Ali decided to hurry home. He shortened his American visit, canceled a two-day trip to Canada and flew back to Karachi.

All negotiated an increase in United States aid on his trip to Washington. This may help ease the economic difficulties which are partly to blame for Pakistan's political upheaval.

The United States announced it would step up its aid to Pakistan to about $155,000,000 this fiscal year. Economic assistance will account for $105,000,000, compared with $20,000,000 last year. Military aid will total $50,000,000.

SHAH OF IRAN TO VISIT U.S.

TEHRAN, Oct. 25 (AP)—A court source said yesterday Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi plans an unofficial visit to the United States for medical care after he signs Iran's new oil pact. The 34-year-old monarch, accompanied by Queen Soraya, probably will vacation at Sun Valley, Ida., after a complete checkup at Doctors Hospital in New York, the informant said. The Shah was under a doctor's care in New York in 1949.

INDONESIA OUSTS ANTI-RED CHINESE AS SECURITY RISK

JAKARTA, Oct. 25 (AP)—A Chinese anti-Communist leader whom the Indonesian government ordered deported as a security risk was flown yesterday to Makassar, the Celebes.
He is Tjiong Hoen Nji, who protested that an original directive that he be sent to Red China was "tantamount to the death sentence."

That directive was watered down Oct. 9. Justice Minister Djody Gondokusumo said Tjiong would be permitted to go to any country willing to receive him. His ultimate destination remained a mystery as he made the 1000-mile flight under guard today from Jakarta to the Celebes, which lies south of the Philippines and Formosa.

The Chinese Nationalist leader had been insisting that he be tried publicly on the charge of endangering the security of the state. Details of the charge have never been made public.

Tjiong's wife and one son are still in Jakarta. A second son is studying in Formosa's capital, Taipei.

West, which he did not think was justified.

Vishinsky contended the Soviet Union from the beginning of the atomic energy negotiation was for world control, demanding immediate establishment of an enforcement organ when atom bombs were outlawed. There must be an agreement on nuclear supervision, he continued, before a control organ had any reason for existence.

Need for Simultaneous Action.

That is what he means by the need for "simultaneous" action, Vishinsky explained, and that is why Moscow declined to accept the Baruch plan calling for imposition of controls before the atom bomb was abolished. The Baruch scheme now seems to be "entirely discredited," and is as "dead as a doornail," he added. It would have, merely served to strengthen the war potentials of "certain countries."

The same would apply to the American request for agreements not to use nuclear weapons except against "aggressors," he asserted.

That would permit a nation to coin its own definition of an aggression," he said.

In his reply to demands for amplification of the Russian suggestions, it appeared to listeners that Vishinsky made a long stride toward meeting Western requirements.

Charles Malik of Lebanon took up most of the morning meeting with an attack on world Communism which, he said, must be eliminated if lasting peace is to be attained.

The United Press said Dr. Malik challenged Vishinsky to explain whether Communist doctrine is changing, and the Russian retorted that the Lebanon spokesman should "go back to his university halls."

Malik said Russia had not changed its stand on disarmament at all since it put forth its controversial proposals on Sept. 30.

Extent of Change Factor.

(Malik, a former philosophy professor at the American University in Beirut and instructor in the subject at Harvard, said: "The determination of the limits of change in Communist doctrine is of the greatest importance. Once we know this, we will know what the world really is up against.") (Vishinsky said testily that Malik was not only out of order, but in the wrong place.

"Apparently he lost his way today," the Russian said. "Instead of going into a university hall, he got into this committee."

(What Malik said, Vishinsky added, was simply this: "Give up your Communism, your doctrines, and come over to our side, and everything will be hunky dory.")

Chile also spoke, urging speedy arms reduction, to assuage the fears of smaller nations of atomic war.

It was a foregone conclusion the 60-nation group would adopt the resolution directing the Disarmament Commission to revive private conversations on the vital subject. The resolution is supported by the nations slated to participate in the closed-door conferences—the United States, United Kingdom, Russia, France and Canada.

PRESIDENT ADDS HALLOWEEN WISH TO EDISON TRIBUTE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—President Eisenhower last night combined a tribute to Thomas A. Edison with a wish that America have a "gay" Halloween.

Appearing in a filmed portion of a television program marking the seventy-fifth anniversary of Edison's development of the electric light bulb, Mr. Eisenhower said he wanted to spend Halloween with his grandchildren because it "is one of those times when we Americans actually encourage the little individuals to be free to do things rather as they please."

"I hope," he said, "you and your children have a gay (Halloween) evening and let's all give a little prayer that their childish pranks will be the only kind of mischief with which we Americans must cope."

Eisenhower said Edison's invention showed "faith and the American individual" in action. "It is on these two pillars that our future rests," he said.

MEEK, DOUGLAS IN DEBATE ON FOREIGN POLICY

Democrat Urges Aid Abroad, Republican Proposes 'Top-Flight Salesmanship.'

CHICAGO, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Illinois senatorial candidates—Republican Joseph T. Meek and Democratic Senator Paul H. Douglas—shared the speaking platform yesterday in a discussion of America's role in world diplomacy.

Meek offered "top-flight American salesmanship" as a means of increasing United States prestige abroad in contrast to the "socialism and alliances of the Democratic administration."

Douglas proposed a policy of "peace through strength" with continued support of economic and military aid programs to friendly foreign powers.

The two election candidates appeared before the Glenbard Sunday Evening Club in suburban Glen Ellyn.

Urges 'Self-Help' Policy.
Meek accused the Democrats of "failures in diplomacy, giveaway and snuggling up to Communism." He voiced support of the Eisenhower policy "based on self-help" of foreign nations.

Meek said the Republican Administration "has also greatly reduced the pouring of American dollars down foreign rat-holes."

"The Dean Acheson program of spending many millions of dollars on military hardware helped nobody, nearly scuttled our treasury and failed in its avowed purpose, that of containing Communism," he said.

Meek said it "humiliated the Polish people, the Germans, the Chinese and the Koreans."

He said the nation should embark on a program of selling "American ideas overseas" as a "psychological counterattack of Red propaganda."

Douglas on Isolationism.
Douglas, in placing his faith in collective security, rejected isolationism as "the road to national suicide." He said he would continue to support measures to build stronger military forces in the United States and its allies.

"I want the President to help put other nations in a position where they can stand up to Soviet terror," Douglas said former President Theodore Roosevelt's policy of "talk soft and carry a big stick" is "still a good policy" in world diplomacy. Douglas warned against cutting the "muscle" of the nation's military because "it also cuts into the muscle of our diplomacy."

ADMIRALS TO REDUCE STRENGTH OF WAVESAll Reserve Officers to Go in Three-Year Cutback; Women Complaining.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (UP)—Admirals, who have never exactly taken a shine to sailors in skirts, have decided to cut the strength of the Waves drastically in the coming three years.

And the women who will be ousted are not particularly happy about the admirals' decision. Some of the Waves in the Pentagon are complaining that it is all part of an "admirals' plot" to scuttle their program.

Under the plan, the number of Wave officers will be slashed in half and the number of enlisted waves reduced by one third. Out will go all Wave officers who are reservists, Capt. Louise K. Wilde, director of the Waves, told a reporter the objective is to get the Waves down from the inflated Korean strength to a "peacetime nucleus strength." Navy officials and admirals, she said, have concluded the Waves are too big for their peacetime role of serving as a base for wartime expansion of the distaff side of the Navy.

The Navy now has about 8000 women in its ranks, including 900 officers and 7100 enlisted personnel. The cutback, to be carried out gradually over the next three years, will leave the Waves with about 5000 enlisted women and 500 officers, Capt. Wilde said.

The reduction is far more severe than the manpower cut being made through the Navy generally. It will leave the Waves at less than half the strength authorized by law.

CHICAGO BAR TO DISCUSS LAW ON 'TEST TUBE BABIES'

CHICAGO, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Chicago Bar Association has ordered a study of artificial insemination with a view to recommending a law to the 1955 Legislature. Illinois has no law covering rights of persons involved in "test tube baby" cases. There are two such cases pending in superior court.

Samuel A. Rinella, chairman of the association's matrimonial law committee, said physicians and lawyers will be asked to discuss defining the rights and liabilities of the doctor performing the insemination; defining whether the donor is the child's legal father or whether the mother becomes the sole natural parent; and establishing inheritance rights of a baby born of artificial insemination.

2 JAPANESE BOATS SEIZED

TOKYO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Two Japanese shark-fishing boats were seized by Soviet patrol ships yesterday about five miles off Russian-occupied Kunashiro Island, the Maritime Safety Board said today.

A Japanese fishing boat operating nearby reported the nineteen Koei Maru and another, unidentified, boat were taken by the Russians. The board said the Russians have seized 57 boats and 463 crewmen thus far this year, of which 46 boats and 385 crewmen have been released.

REPORT U.N. SOUGHT PLEDGE FROM SOUTH KOREA IS DENIED

SEOUL, Oct. 25 (AP)—United States Army sources close to Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor today denied Korean press reports that the United Nations command staff last week unsuccessfully demanded a written promise from South Korea not to march north to Communist North Korea.

Taylor, Eighth Army commander, attended all conferences last week between President Syngman Rhee and Gen. John E. Hill, U.N. Far East commander. The Army sources labeled as "untrue" a report by the Korean newspaper Chosun Ilbo that during the talks the United States tried to extract a pledge that South Korea would not violate the Korean armistice, which it refused to sign. Chosun Ilbo said Prime Minister Pyun Yung tal told of the request at a closed meeting of the national assembly committee.

U.N. Day Marked Around World; Speakers Take Optimistic View

Organization Has Been Made to Work Despite Soviet Sabotage, Lodge Says—Hope for Peace Emphasized.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 25 (AP)—United Nations day was observed around the world yesterday and the role that the world organization has filled in the nine years of its existence received sober consideration of speakers at the various celebrations.

In Minneapolis, Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief United States delegate to the United Nations, said yesterday "the miracle is that despite unending Soviet attempts at sabotage, the rest of us have made the U.N. Charter work."

He said that some thought Soviet vetoes had finished the U.N. However, Lodge asserted, "it has since become evident that world public opinion is in some respects a greater force than legal power—and the United Nations is the only world forum there is and has become the world's most powerful single engine for affecting world public opinion."

"This gives it a paramount importance in any calculations which may be made about international politics."

Refers to Veto Rights. Lodge referred to proposals to revise the U.N. Charter in 1955 and supported moves to eliminate vetoes on new member applications. But he emphasized he would oppose killing veto rights on any question involving the use of United States troops.

Meanwhile, in Toledo, O., Lodge's deputy, James J. Wadsworth, said there would be little progress on disarmament until the Soviet Union lifts its Iron Curtain for inspection.

In his U.N. day address to the Toledo Council on World Affairs, Wadsworth, who is the United States delegation's spokesman on disarmament, said:

"The long discussions in the United Nations, even though they have not been crowned with success, have definitely not been a waste of time."

Answering criticism of the U.N., Wadsworth said: "I can assure you that while the United Nations may not provide an opportunity for the Communists to voice their favorite propaganda themes, it provides us with a chance to answer

NEHRU REPORTED TO BE ON TOUR OF MANCHURIA

TOKYO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India left Peking yesterday on a tour of Manchuria, Peking radio said.

Nehru will see that industrial heart of Red China by plane. Among the places he will visit are the steel city of Anshan and the port of Dairen, which is occupied by Russian troops.

Nehru, on a state visit to Communist China, was seen off at the airport by Chang Han-fu, vice foreign minister. Before leaving, he was given a welcoming party Saturday by the people of Peking, attended by 20,000 persons in a downtown park, Peking radio said.

The Government's contract with the Dixon-Yates private utility interests to construct a power plant at West Memphis, Ark., was described as a "steal" being put over by Republicans in favor of big business in a talk given today by Mark Eagleton, attorney and Democratic leader.

Eagleton, participating in the Speaker-a-Day program at Democratic headquarters, 1134 Locust street, charged that the Dixon-Yates contract alone amounts to a greater "steal" than all the money misappropriated by errand Democrats in the preceding 20 years.

He said lowest estimates show the Government will pay $3,685,000 more per year for power than an equal amount supplied by the Tennessee Valley Authority or perhaps $5,150,000 more per year for the same quantity purchased from a competitive private syndicate.

CRASH LANDS JET ON VACANT LOT IN RESIDENTIAL AREA

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Oct. 25 (UP)—An Air Force pilot was credited today with saving dozens of lives including his own when he crash landed his powerless F-86 jet fighter in a vacant lot surrounded by houses and a hospital clinic.

The pilot, First Lt. B. R. Hart, 24 years old, of the Fifty-sixth Fighter Squadron at Selfridge Air Force Base near Detroit, leaped to safety with a broken leg seconds before the plane exploded in flames.

Flying from Kirtland Air Force Base, N.M., to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., Hart picked out the vacant lot for his crash landing after the engine of his jet failed. The lot, situated in a thickly populated residential section, measured one-quarter of a mile long and about half that wide. The skidding plane stopped within 500 yards of the clinic and came even closer to several homes.

LONDON COLUMNIST HATES FIRST SIGHT OF TEXANS

LONDON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Writing from Dallas, a London columnist said his initial impression of Texas and Texans is a very poor one.

"I hate my first sight of them," said Rex North, of the Sunday Pictorial, which claims a circulation of over 5,000,000. He listed his objections to the Lone Star State and its citizens as:

Having to pay in advance for a hotel room.

Having to pay in advance for local telephone calls from his hotel.

The lack of cowboys. He said the only one he found was sitting in an air-conditioned bar.

For The Tormenting Twins
Dandruff—Scalp Discomfort

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Mrs. Irene Frahm, 3942 Tholozan, says: "For a long time dandruff flakes were very embarrassing to me. The very first bottle of Baker's Hair Tonic relieved me of this unsightly embarrassment. It is great to be free from the torment of an itchy scalp, and not have to be brushing dandruff all the time. I will use Baker's occasionally for the rest of my life."

For dandruff and itchy scalp, use Baker's Hair Tonic. For clean scalp and lustrous hair, use Baker's Shampoo. Buy them where you trade. You will like both, or the makers will refund your money.

FREE Generous trial size of NEW FOR-NU-LA Baker's Lustrous Shampoo for all who part of mailing card. Send 10¢ in coin or stamps to Box 33, Dallas, Tex.

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

On receipt of his ballot the voter shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the voting booths so provided, and shall prepare his ballot for voting in the following manner: Should the voter desire to vote a "straight" party ticket he shall place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below the party name. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates on more than one party ticket, by voting what is commonly called a "split ticket" he may place a cross (X) mark in the circle immediately below one party name and mark cross (X) marks in the squares at the left of the names of candidates on other tickets for whom he wishes to vote. If the voter desires to vote for one or more candidates whose name or names do not appear on the printed ballot he may do so by drawing a line through the printed name of candidate for such office, and writing below such cancelled name the name of the person for whom he desires to vote, and placing a cross mark in the square at the left of such name. The squares so marked shall take precedence over the cross marked in the circle. Where there are two or more candidates for like office in a group, a cross (X) mark in the square to the left of a candidate's name automatically votes against the candidate whose name appears within the same horizontal lines in the column under the circle in which appears the cross (X) mark, unless the voter indicates another candidate to be voted against by drawing a line through such candidate's name. All candidates of the party whose circle is marked shall be counted as voted for excepting where squares are crossed preceding the names of candidates in other columns. If two or more candidates for the same office are thus designated, neither shall be counted. If the cross (X) is not placed in the circle immediately below the party name at the head of the column, but does appear in the squares opposite the various candidates' names, then only these names shall be counted for, and none other. A cross (X) mark is any line crossing any other line at an angle within the voting space, and no ballot shall be declared void because a cross (X) mark therein is irregular in form. It shall not be lawful to deface or tear a ballot in any manner nor to erase any printed name (except as provided above in this section), figure, word or letter therefrom, nor to erase any mark made thereon by such voter, nor to enclose in the folded ballot any other paper or any article. If the voter deface or tear a ballot, or wrongly mark the name or make an erasure therein, he may obtain one additional ballot on returning to a judge in charge of the ballots the one so defaced or wrongly marked. A ballot placed in the ballot box without any marks shall not be counted. Ballots shall be counted only for the person for whom the marks thereon are applicable; when a voter shall place a mark against two or more names for the same office, and only one candidate is to be chosen for the office, none of the candidates shall be deemed to have been voted for and the ballots shall not be counted for either such candidate. Before leaving the booth the voter shall fold his ballot in such a manner as to conceal his marks thereon. He shall mark his ballot without undue delay. He shall then hand the ballot to the judge of election selected to take ballots. The voter shall quit and leave said enclosed place as soon as possible.

Eisenhower Tries Hard for Ives, But It Is Doubtful Whether His Visit Helped G.O.P. Candidate

Bombshell of Campaign Has Been Poll That Showed Harriman Well Ahead, and Even Dewey's Smile of Benediction May Not Save His Protege.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1954, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.)

RESIDENT EISENHOWER has done his best for Senator Irving Ives, the Republican candidate for Governor, in a series of appearances in New York City that came as the result of almost desperate urging by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey; but whether the Eisenhower appeal has rubbed off on Ives, who is running considerably behind in polls that have proved reliable in the past, is doubtful.

Dewey, who announced his retirement from politics some time ago, also has tried to transfer his vote-getting appeal to the man he persuaded to make the governorship race in his stead. Scarcely a photograph of Ives appears without Dewey in the foreground, smiling his smile of benediction, but since the Dewey specialty has always been the angry lightning of the prosecutor, this gesture of amiability is not altogether effective.

Straw Poll's Result.
The bombshell in the campaign was the announcement of the first tally from the New York Daily News straw poll. It showed that the Democratic candidate, Averell Harriman, who is a candidate for public office on a ballot for the first time in his life, has 54 per cent of the vote to 46 per cent for Ives.

These figures included not only Democratic New York City but upstate New York which normally is Republican. In upstate areas Ives was running as much as 10 per cent behind the totals Dewey piled up four years ago.

In a later poll Harriman had gained a fraction of a per cent which put his lead just under 55 per cent.

If that reflection of voter sentiment is as accurate as it has proved in the past, the Democratic margin is so generous as to forecast a Democratic sweep of almost landslide proportions. In the view of most observers, if there is actually such a trend in New York State, then something very like this trend will prevail pretty much through the rest of the country.

Surprise to Democrats.
The results of the News poll appear to have been as great a surprise to the Democrats as it was a shock to the Republicans. One consequence in the Democratic camp is to produce such confidence that some Democrats now fear over-confidence may result in the loss of the election. They point to the ominous parallel of 1948 when right up to election night the Republicans were supremely confident that Dewey would defeat Harry S. Truman running for re-election.

The bubble of Democratic confidence has become so inflated that certain of Harriman's advisers seriously discussed the need to discourage Senator Estes Kefauver, the Tennessee Democrat whose re-election seems assured, from coming into the state to speak in behalf of his man. The reason? If Kefauver came into New York, then Harriman would owe him a debt of gratitude and this might be embarrassing in the 1956 presidential race when Harriman, from the vantage point of the governorship of New York, would again be a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

In the weeks immediately preceding the Democratic convention of 1952 the Harriman boom was not taken too seriously except by the candidate and his loyal followers. He did have, however, the support of the Tammany organization, including the bosses responsible for his selection for the governorship race in New York this fall. Harriman was tapped over the active opposition of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who at the

Dewey Asks Tubman to Lunch To Head Off Hyde Park Visit

Invitation Is Calculated to Keep the President of Liberia From Laying a Wreath on F.D.R. Tomb.

By DREW PEARSON

(Copyright, 1954.)

A SIGNIFICANT backstage hassle has developed over the right to entertain, and be photographed with, William V. S. Tubman, Negro President of the Republic of Liberia. Climax of the hassle is an invitation to President Tubman from Gov. Dewey calculated to keep him away from Hyde Park and the laying of a wreath on Franklin D. Roosevelt's tomb. Pleased but harried, President Tubman doesn't quite know what to do. A Republican President brought him to the United States, so he feels he has to bow to the wishes of his hosts. On the other hand, the late President Roosevelt was and is a great hero in Liberia—the only President of the United States to visit Liberia. So President Tubman's advisers are suggesting that he had better go to Roosevelt's tomb at Hyde Park even if it does cost the Republican party some Negro votes on Nov. 2.

Official reason for President Tubman's visit is to get a $4,000,000 aid program extended. A realist, he is under no delusion regarding his sudden popularity with Eisenhower officials.

Adenauer Says Pact Improves Unity Chances Because Reds Fear Strength

Chancellor Hopes
Paris Accord Will Be Ratified in 'Next Few Months.'

By HUGH BAILLIE

(Copyright, 1954, by United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.

CHANCELLOR KONRAD ADENAUER said in a cabled interview today that the 15-nation Paris agreement restoring German sovereignty and a German army has increased the chances of uniting East and West Germany because the Russians have shown they will respect only a Western world that is "united and strong."

He hopes for ratification of the Paris agreement by the parliaments of the 15 nations within "the next few months." Within two and a half years, Adenauer added, a 500,000-man German army will be ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with the Western allies against the threat of Russian aggression.

Replies to Questions.
Adenauer replied to a series of questions I cabled to him at the West German capital of Bonn. Tomorrow he departs for an official visit to the United States.

The general tone of Adenauer's replies to my questions was optimistic. He made the flat statement that "the West German population is absolutely immune to the Communist danger" from within.

My questions and Adenauer's textual replies follow:

Q. What are Germany's aspirations toward union with East Germany?

A. Reunion in peace and freedom with the Soviet-occupied part of Germany is the main objective of the Federal German government's policy and the main concern of the West German population without distinction of party affiliation. Both myself and the leader of the (Social Democratic) opposition (Erich Ollenhauer) have often enough emphasized that this reunification for which all are striving must be brought about only by peaceful means. The methods for achieving this goal are free internationally supervised elections.

Q. What are Germany's aspirations toward East Prussia and the territory beyond the Oder-Neisse?

A. The solution of the problem of East Prussia and the territories beyond the Oder-Neisse line must be reserved for a peace treaty.

Q. How long will it take to raise an army of 500,000 within the Brussels pact?

A. Raising the planned German divisions will take about two and a half years.

Q. Are German people patriotically eager to have an army again?

A. No. Patriotism is not the decisive and motivating factor in raising a German army again. The German people has no particular yearning to raise a wehrmacht again, but in view of the international situation it is ready to make a contribution to the security of Western Europe.

Q. Were any unfair restrictions attached to the German army at the London conference?

A. No.

Q. What, if any, is the Communist problem in West Germany?

A. For nine years now the German people has proved clearly that it rejects extremism from both the right and the left. Further the federal German government has taken all necessary steps to oppose effectively the infiltration of Communist agents and provocateurs. But first and foremost it is the economic recovery and social structure of the Red republic and the close knowledge of the brutal methods of the Bolshevik regime that are the surest guarantee that the West German population is absolutely immune to the Communist danger.

Q. Does Germany agree that United States troops should remain in Europe, and especially Germany after the restoration of sovereignty?

A. Yes, even after the German sovereignty is restored the German people will consider the stationing of American troops on German soil as simply a proof that the United States considers it an important aim of its policy to ensure the freedom of West Europe and the federal German republic. The great majority of the West German people today already regard the American troops on German soil not as an occupation army, but as allies.

Crowning Achievements.
Q. What do you consider the crowning achievements of your political career for the German people?

A. To have succeeded in creating normal living conditions again for the people of West Germany who were desperate and starving after the collapse of the Hitlerian reign of violence and also to have made Germany a member of the Western community of nations.

Q. What is your estimate of the chances for ratification of the Paris agreements and when?

A. I hope all the agreements will go into force within a few months.

Q. Is there any foreseeable chance Russia will agree to give up East Germany?

A. Unfortunately we have no indications of that at the moment. After the agreements concluded at Paris go into effect the prospects will improve because it has been proved that Russia will only make concessions if the West is united and strong.

Poll Indicates Democratic Senate Victory

New York Times Predicts 3-Vote Margin, Puts Douglas Ahead of Meek.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (UP).

THE New York Times says today that a survey by its correspondents indicates the Democrats will gain control of the Senate next week by the same three-vote margin as that now held by the Republicans.

The newspaper says its survey shows Democrats leading for four Senate seats now held by Republicans — in New Jersey, Kentucky, Wyoming and Nevada — and have a "toss-up" chance to hold the Ohio seat they gained by appointment last year.

Democrats are leading in 25 of the 37 races, the Times says. The newspaper reports shifts in two senatorial contests since its first survey of Senate races three weeks ago. In Idaho, the Times says, conservative Democratic sentiment against former Senator Glen Taylor has resulted in a shift to Republican incumbent Senator Henry C. Dworshak.

In Illinois, the newspaper says, Democratic Senator Paul H. Douglas has moved ahead of Republican Joseph T. Meek. The Times' correspondent reported "about the only last-minute change that could wreck Senator Douglas would be his demise."

The newspaper reports an edge for Democrats in seven of 12 hotly contested races—in Illinois, Colorado, Delaware, Iowa, Minnesota, Montana and New Mexico. The Republicans hold an edge in five close races, the newspaper says, in Idaho, Massachusetts, Michigan, Oregon and California.

Fourteen seats are said to be certain for the Democrats and six certain for the Republicans on the basis of established voting habits.

GALLUP POLL

Democrats Ahead as Congress Race Goes Into Home Stretch

52 Pct. of Voters Expressing a Preference
Turn Down G.O.P. — Solid South a Prime Factor in Outcome.

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

(Copyright, 1954.)

PRINCETON, N.J., Oct. 25.

THE semi-final survey of party strength finds the Democrats still leading the Republicans for control of the House of Representatives. Latest nationwide figures show the Democrats with the same substantial lead in seats that they have held in Institute surveys since March of this year.

The question:
"If the elections for Congress were being held today, which party would you like to see win in this state—the Republican party or the Democratic party?"

The vote:

	Rep.	Dem.
1946 election	54%	46%
1948 election	46	54
1950 election	50	50+
1952 election	50	50+
TODAY	48	52

A total of 8 per cent was undecided. Today's report is limited solely to House races. Since Senatorial elections are not held in all states in any one election year, the House contests form the only over-all measure of political strength in off years.

G.O.P. Ahead in 3 Sections.
Republicans lead in three out of the five major geographical regions of the country—the Far Central, West Central and Far Western states. Democrats hold the lead in the Eastern and Southern states, the two sections which control the majority of seats in the House.

In terms of gains over the 1952 vote for Congress, Republican hopes take on a progressively brighter hue as one looks at the figures westward across the country:

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Skip-Stop Vs. 30 M.P.H.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Last week while driving west on Arsenal street I noticed the Police Department's radar crew getting set up in the 3800 block.

Much to my surprise I discovered that it isn't exactly a trap due to the fact that both the radar truck and the motorcycle officers were in plain view of anyone headed their way.

The officers were parked about a half block east of the Oak Hill intersection so I parked just west of that stop sign so I could see the entire operation.

During the time that I watched five speeders arrested I counted a total of 21 cars that either failed to make an attempt to stop, or made one of our famous St. Louis rolling stops at the Oak Hill stop sign. All of these cars were in view of either of the two motorcycle officers with the radar crew. Not one of them was stopped.

Why wouldn't it be to the advantage of the Police Department to use these radar officers at the stop signs? Isn't it as much of a crime to run a stop sign as it is to drive a few miles per hour faster than our antiquated 30-mile speed limit?

$4 to Light a Furnace

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Several months ago one of your readers advised people using gas not to try lighting their own gas furnaces, as this was a service performed free by Laclede Gas Co.

Thinking this would also apply to East Side gas customers, I recently called the Illinois Power Co. to come out and light our furnace. I was informed there would be a charge of $4.

If Laclede can offer this service gratis, why should Illinois Power find it necessary to charge their customers for the few minutes it takes a service man to start the furnace? It seems to me the increase in the amount of gas consumed should more than compensate for this service.

Mr. Nixon's Medicine

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
In denouncing the unfair attack on Republican senatorial candidate Clifford Case of New Jersey, linking his sister with Communism from an organization, Vice President Nixon expressed shock that such tactics which "offend the American sense of fair play" would be used in politics.

These are incredible words indeed coming from Richard Nixon, who did not win his senatorial campaign in 1950 by a vicious smear linking Helen Gahagan Douglas to Communism?

Did he not spend most of his time in the 1952 campaign attempting to show that Adlai Stevenson was "soft on Communism" because he had given a deposition on Alger Hiss's character?

Is he not now trying to convince the voters in 1954 that any Democratic candidate who is associated in any way with Truman, Stevenson or A.D.A. is a "left-winger"?

Apparently, Mr. Nixon believes that guilt by association tactics are low politics only when used against Republicans but are legitimate and justifiable when used against Democrats. It is unlikely that this Republican taste of Nixon's medicine will cure him. MARIAN BARNHOLTZ, University City.

One-Party Rule

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It was good to see the editorial on the efforts of Douglas Jones in the Circuit Court of St. Louis county. May I express my deepest congratulations to the Post-Dispatch on finally becoming aware of the one-party rule that we've been living under so long? MADEIRA WILLIAMS, Rigging a Signal?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
While I feel that it is vitally important to the community that express highways into the city be constructed, it is underhanded to tamper with the automatic signal system so that motorists are impressed with this urgency.

It is quite obvious that the proponents of TR 40 rigged the signal at Brentwood boulevard and Clayton road allowing so few cars to proceed through at one time that a traffic tieup was the inevitable result.

On Oct. 13 the State Highway Department decided TR 40 would be located on the proposed route through Richmond Heights and no further objections would be entertained. On Oct. 14, the signals at Brentwood and Clayton were again altered so that the flow of traffic was resumed to its former rapid pace, and the tie-ups were eliminated.

This kind of rigging was previously done at Big Bend boulevard and Clayton road and corrected immediately after the county bond issue election. C. MARVIN HARWOOD, Ladue.

The AEC Appointment

John Von Neumann, who has been appointed by President Eisenhower a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, is a distinguished mathematician and scientific theorist who contributed heavily to the development of the hydrogen bomb. He has been a professor at the Institute of Advanced Study in Princeton, N.J., working under the direction of the head of that institute, J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Dr. Von Neumann most certainly appears to be eminently qualified to serve as the successor to Eugene M. Zuckert on the AEC. The remarkable thing about his appointment is that it brings to the AEC a man who testified in Dr. Oppenheimer's behalf at the hearings last spring which resulted in the AEC's branding Dr. Oppenheimer a security risk.

Dr. Von Neumann was one of a long list of scientists and Government officials who testified that they had complete confidence in Dr. Oppenheimer's loyalty, discretion and integrity. His testimony was especially impressive on the 1943 Chevalier incident, which loomed so large in the findings. Dr. Von Neumann said:

Look, you have to view the performance and the character of a man as a whole. This episode, if true, would make me think that in the course of 1943 he was not emotionally and intellectually prepared to handle this kind of a job; that he subsequently learned how to handle it, and handled it very well, I know.

In our opinion, Dr. Von Neumann thus showed good judgment on security questions. But if his judgment was good, then the judgment of those AEC members who condemned Dr. Oppenheimer must have been bad. And if Dr. Von Neumann is the one who was mistaken, or "soft," or otherwise inadequate, then how does it happen that he is now elevated to the AEC?

It may be suggested that this appointment is in the nature of a bone tossed to the pro-Oppenheimer scientists—that though he succeeds Commissioner Zuckert, who voted against Dr. Oppenheimer, Dr. Von Neumann in spirit takes the place of Dr. Henry D. Smyth, resigned, who voted the other way. But appointments to the AEC ought not to be made on any such basis.

Either the AEC was right in the Oppenheimer case or it was wrong. The appointment of an eminent scientist who conspicuously disagrees with the AEC's judgment leaves the Oppenheimer case more open to question than ever.

No Man for Office

John W. Joynt is the Democratic nominee for State Senator from the Second St. Louis District. He served one six-year term as a Circuit Judge (1934-40), and that was enough. He was criticized not only for the way he handled vote fraud litigation, but for his activities in recommending paroles for such notorious criminals as the late John (Buddy) Luger, who was shot to death, and Isadore Londe, an Egan gunman.

When the Kefauver Crime Committee was in St. Louis, the name of John W. Joynt popped up again. That time it was with the two Tonys—Anthony Lopiparo, slot machine operator, and Anthony Giardano, hoodlum—for whose "Anthony Novelty Co." John W. Joynt was designated as registered agent.

That same year (1950) when minor hoodlums and big-time gangsters gathered in Kansas City to mourn the death of their pal, Charles Binaglio, John W. Joynt was on hand, big as life. He was to have been one of the active pallbearers but instead gave up that place of honor and walked behind the casket.

John W. Joynt has been too close to too many thugs and hoodlums for far too long. He is not a man for public office.

Within the Week

Gov. Donnelly says he hopes that sometime this week he will be able to complete membership of a survey group to study the operations and needs of the riot-torn Missouri Penitentiary. This is the essential first step in any rational program for seeking out the "why" of the three recent riots, and what the state's reaction to them ought to be.

The fact that Warden Joseph E. Ragen of Joliet and Stateville prisons in Illinois probably will be a member of the survey commission lends considerable stature to that body even before it is fully constituted. Warden Ragen is a nationally known penologist. Missouri will be fortunate indeed if it can command his wide experience. The commission should also contain some university expert on prison problems and management.

The sooner that membership on the commission is completed the sooner it can get to work. The Governor has been mulling over the idea for almost a month. Nothing on the Governor's desk is currently more urgent business.

Let us hope the survey group can be constituted and set to work before the week is out.

A Proposition for St. Louis County

Some 1450 lawyers living in St. Louis county have been polled as to their preferences in the four contests for Circuit Judge and the one for Probate Judge that county voters will decide Nov. 2. While replies were received from only 633 of those polled—fewer than half—that is still a substantial number. Here are the results:

DIVISION 3 (six-year term)

Noah Weinstein (D), 406

John S. Stevens (R), 220

DIVISION 4 (six years)

Fred E. Mueller (R), 532

Vincent S. Moody (D), 89

DIVISION 5 (two years)

Douglas L. C. Jones (D), 350

Harold D. Carey (R), 279

DIVISION 6 (two years)

Franklin Ferris (R), 437

William E. Gallagher (D), 174

PROBATE JUDGE

Walter F. Stahlhuth (R), 529

Fred M. Joseph (D), 90

At the same time that county voters are choosing their judges in a frankly partisan and political election they also will be deciding whether to adopt a charter amendment providing for non-political law enforcement. Some voters may find this somewhat incongruous. They will be right; it certainly is.

If it is important to take politics out of police work—and that is the principal aim of the charter proposal—it is even more important to lift the judiciary above the mire of partisanship. How can the courts of St. Louis county be freed of participating in primaries and elections? Easily enough. All that needs to be done is to make use of the nonpartisan court plan, which is a part of the Missouri Constitution.

Nonpartisan selection of Judges is now the rule for filling vacancies on the Missouri Supreme Court, the State Courts of Appeals at St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield and the Circuit and Probate Courts in St. Louis and Jackson County. The plan also applies to the St.

Louis Courts of Criminal Correction. Any judicial area may gain the benefits of the nonpartisan court plan by invoking the section of the Constitution which permits a vote on adopting the plan. St. Louis county voters deserve the opportunity of deciding whether they will take advantage of it.

Didn't They Know?

"No one dared call his program a wedge for Socialism."

So President Eisenhower said of Alfred E. Smith in his tribute to the late Governor of New York. The only thing wrong with the statement is that a lot of people did dare to make that charge. One of them was Herbert Hoover.

Delivering a major 1928 campaign address in New York's Madison Square Garden, G.O.P. Nominee Hoover hit directly at the New York Governor's policies on electric power and farm relief. Mr. Hoover charged that Mr. Smith had "abandoned the tenets of his own party" and had turned to "State Socialism." Then Mr. Hoover appealed to the voters to re-install the Republican party in power in the White House in order to prevent the application of "paternalistic and socialist doctrines."

That was on Oct. 22, 1928. Four nights later, Alfred E. Smith delivered his memorable answer in the Boston Arena. The New York Governor said that "Socialism" was the old cry of the forces of reaction that opposed progressive legislation. He said he had been called "Socialist" times without number. He cited bill after bill, designed to improve the lot of working men and widows and orphans, which he had supported in the Assembly at Albany and which the Old Guard leaders had denounced as "Socialism."

But hear again words that brought cheers from the sidewalks of New York:

Take the workmen's compensation act. What was the argument against it? Because it set up an insurance company under state ownership and state operation it was referred to as Socialism.

Take the factory code. Take the night work law for women. The law prohibiting the working of children in tanneries. The law prohibiting the working of women in the core rooms of foundries.

All that great factory code in New York designed to protect the health, the welfare and the well being of men, women and children over the last 25 years has been referred to as paternalistic and Socialistic.

In 1922, when I was candidate for Governor, I advocated the extension of these beneficial laws. I was called a Socialist.

Socialism is the cry of the special interests. It is a subterfuge and a camouflage, and the people are sick and tired of it.

The new Governor delighted in, the company of distinguished Socialists around him. He showed how the Hoover definition made a Socialist of Republican President Theodore Roosevelt. He recalled Owen D. Young's support for the Smith proposal for a state water power authority: "If I am a Socialist so is the chairman of the Board of Directors of the General Electric Co." And that was only the start of Al Smith's chapter-and-verse reply to Mr. Hoover.

We wonder whether Mr. Eisenhower's speech writers did not know that they put completely wrong words in the mouth of the President of the United States? Or did they know and deliberately take advantage of the fact that he did not know the difference?

A Needed Highway Safety Device

Because of their large size, their interference with vision and their potential danger in the hands of a careless or unqualified driver, trucks are one of the major safety menaces on the highways. Anything that can be done to make these juggernauts safer to operate should be done. Yet the American Trucking Association is asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to rule against a petition that would require all trucks to carry an emergency braking device that would automatically stop the truck if its brakes fail.

The truckers express "serious reservations" on such a device, asserting it could cause sudden stops in heavy traffic. The bump that a following vehicle might receive when a truck stopped suddenly in slowly moving heavy traffic would be nothing to what occurs when the brakes fail and a truck runs wild. For instance, a 15-ton truck running wild killed three persons and injured 14 at Liberty, N.Y., last July 24. Six died in a similar accident at Uniontown, Pa., in 1952. These instances could be multiplied.

If the device passes inspection by the ICC it should be required as a step in the waging of the continual campaign for highway safety. The argument that the device might fail is about as convincing as the argument that brakes are useless because they too might fail.

Irregular

Even before the leaves fall and the playing fields harden, this has been a fine college football season, full of poetic injustices. The South is corn-pone deep in upsets and Arkansas is off the doormat, holding the Cotton Bowl key. Not counting Oklahoma, a fortunate omission, Missouri has a crack at the Orange Bowl. Illinois won a game; Washington lost its homecoming to a fellow named Cryz. Notre Dame didn't even play. And strong Wisconsin, having defeated Purdue on a 98-yard runback of a pass interception, lost to Ohio State after an 88-yard pass runback. If this is what is known as midseason form, we will not haul down the goal posts yet.

East by Way of the West

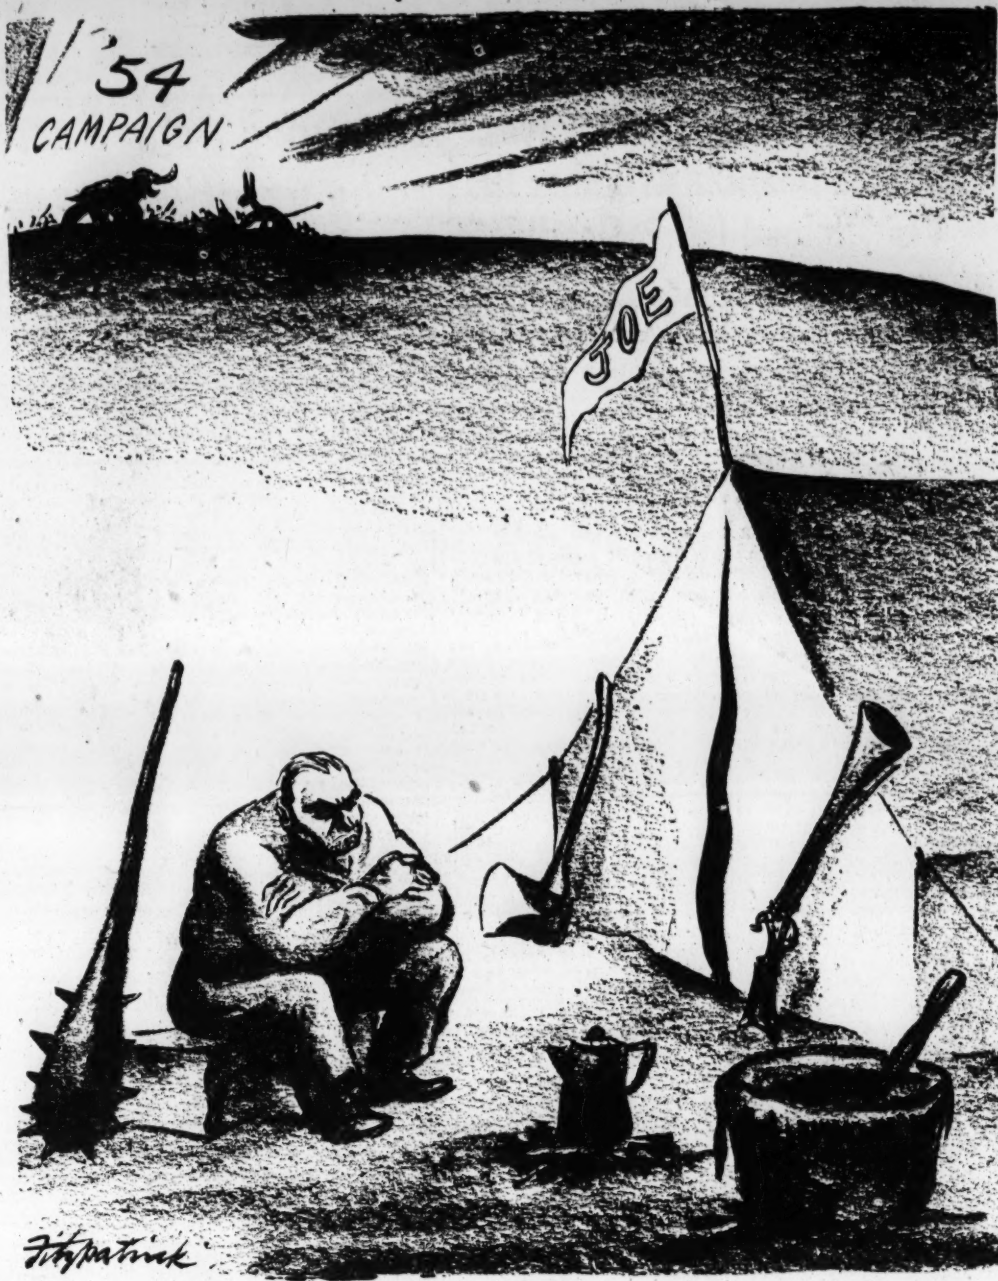

Museums, mistakenly thought to be only for esthetes and scholars, can be of interest to common folks. Perry Rathbone is demonstrating this all over again in his showmanlike presentation of "Westward the Way."

Among formally attired members of the Friends of the Museum attending Friday night's preview were eight Kiowa and Comanche men and women in tribal regalia. Dramatic tableaux developed as they scrutinized their ancestors' likenesses done by such palefaces as Carl Wimar, George Caleb Bingham, George Catlin and Charles Bird King.

St. Louis will remember similar mixtures of showmanship with art. Shade of an armored knight riding through the streets and dancing with a St. Louis girl at the Vienna Treasures exhibit! Memories of a revolving windmill, complete with a showgirl as a Dutch treat inside to symbolize the great Van Gogh centennial, and of a Sicilian donkey drawing a cart to interest St. Louisans in the museum's "Italy at Work" art and craft display.

Steadily rising museum attendance figures bespeak Director Rathbone's successful integration of the museum with community life. And anyone who doubts the fascination of "Westward the Way" or its suitability to the Louisiana Purchase celebration of which it is a part should be sure to tour the exhibit.

If Mr. Rathbone does this with sedate St. Louis, what will he do to proper Bostonians and their august museum when, come April, he takes over along the Fenway?

TO FIGHT ANOTHER DAY?

The Mirror
Public Opinion

St. Louis public school reading clinics are achieving phenomenal results; seventh-grader gains two years in ability in 27 hours' teaching; Korean veteran "thanks God" for sending teacher to him; training opens new world of learning—and self-respect.

G. M. White in the Ladies' Home Journal

Assistant Superintendent William Kottmeyer, in charge of the reading program in the St. Louis public schools, says flatly, "All children qualified to be in regular public-school classrooms can be taught to read. If they do not learn, it is because they are not taught."

His statement may well be news to many parents whose children have stumbled and suffered through school because of poor reading ability. Reading failure has been attributed to any number of complex factors other than inadequate teaching.

Dr. Kottmeyer maintains the chief factors are educational. Here is an accounting of 924 children studied in the St. Louis language-arts centers because of failure to learn to read.

Of these cases 638, or 69 per cent, had normal or superior intelligence.

As a group they show more physical handicaps than normal groups. Some 494, or 53 per cent, had a physical handicap which might have had something to do with their failure to learn.

An Outstanding Handicap

Again, this group shows more seeing and hearing handicaps than a random group—47 per cent had some sight deficiency and 18 per cent had hearing losses greater than a 10 per cent loss in either ear.

Emotional disturbances among the children in this group were a relatively minor factor. The best judgment of the St. Louis Reading Clinic teachers making these diagnoses is that some 6 per cent of the 924 cases showed evidence that emotional disturbances interfered seriously with their learning to read.

The outstanding handicapping characteristic among these 924 cases is that approximately 94 per cent either have never learned or have never been taught to associate sounds with letters of the alphabet.

No one can state accurately the number of retarded readers in the public schools today. Some estimates run as high as one third of the total enrollment.

'I'm Just Too Dumb to Learn'

In many of our schools children are, in effect, being taught to hate reading. They are being promoted each year to the next higher grade, without ever having mastered the one skill essential for them to learn from the books.

For them the classroom is a torture chamber and they often express their frustration by misbehavior or complete passivity in the classroom, and sometimes by more serious delinquency.

Here is the case of Ronnie, a seventh-grader in St. Louis who could barely read fourth-grade material. He told his teacher, "I'm just too dumb to learn."

His score on a Stanford-Binet Form M showed an I.Q. of 106—comfortably above average.

With special reading training, in only 27 clock hours of teaching (two hours a week for about three months) he gained two years in reading ability.

"Well, what do you know—I can read!" he told his mother. "They gave me a book I can read!" His blue eyes glistened almost with tears, as though he had found a new world—as indeed he had. And along with it, new self-respect and pride.

But for these few hours of concentrated instruction in reading, he might have thought himself "stupid" and behaved that way throughout his life.

A Korean veteran who only a few years ago learned to read at the language-arts center located in the Ashland elementary school returned on leave to tell Supervisor Kay Ware, "I'm not a prayin' man, but I sure thank God for sending me to you."

There are many reasons why more children are not taught to read well. One of the most glaring is the number of children most teachers are required to teach.

The average number of children per teacher in the St. Louis public schools, a typical big-city example, is 38, but some schools in the most crowded districts have classrooms crammed with as many as 58 children.

Few public-school systems have reading clinics, and even in localities where reading clinics exist, they offer no real solution to the problem of retarded readers.

Remedy Starts With Teachers

The five well-staffed language-arts centers in St. Louis reach directly only a small fraction of the number who need help among an enrollment of some 90,000 in the city's public schools.

They also, however, give demonstrations and advice to regular classroom teachers and provide in-service training in the teaching of reading.

This function of reading clinics, though little developed, is the one which Dr. Kottmeyer believes holds most promise. It is, in effect, applying the remedy to the teachers.

The unique development in the St. Louis reading program is the plan for special third-grade "classes of 20."

Thirty-nine such classes have been set up in the St. Louis elementary schools to concentrate on teaching the basic skills—reading, spelling and arithmetic—to third-graders most deficient in these tool subjects.

To limit all classes to 20 students, however, would require almost double the number of teachers presently employed in St. Louis as well as greatly expanded facilities.

Many Methods Must Be Used

The third grade was chosen for the classes of 20 because the end of the third grade marks the "great divide" in elementary schooling.

Until then, children are not expected to learn much on their own from books. The teacher is "with them" in the learning process constantly. But in the fourth grade, and thereafter, books come into their hands. If they are not equipped to handle them, they are likely to fall further behind and despair of ever catching up. Most children double their proficiency in the basic skills in the first four months.

As they acquire the basic tools of learning, behavior problems all but disappear.

Most reading specialists now say that a variety of methods must be used to motivate and to teach children of widely varying abilities and attainment that are found in every classroom. There is no miracle cure for poor readers except the miracle of teaching.

THE SMALL-POTATOES STATE

From the Montreal Star

We like the story of the wide-eyed amazement of a visitor from Texas when told that the province of Quebec was actually larger than his famous home state. He found that, he said, "impossible," but what he really meant, we suspect, was "sacrilegious" or even "blasphemous."

We confess to some surprise when we found out what comparatively small potatoes Texas is where Quebec is concerned. Texas takes in an area of 267,339 square miles, water included. Quebec, on the other hand, spreads over 594,860 square miles.

Between Book Ends

Richard Bissell Misses

HIGH WATER, by Richard Bissell. (Little, Brown & Co., 280 pp., $3.75.)

Mr. Bissell's new novel is a sad disappointment. It lacks the sparkling high spirits and the magically right dialogue that were the bright virtues of his earlier "A Stretch on the River" and "7½ Cents," the latter converted into the book of the currently successful Broadway musical, "The Pajama Game."

Worse still, the tone is world-weary, flat, dispirited; the dialogue sometimes crudely contrived, usually pedestrian.

Infrequently coming up almost to Mr. Bissell's usual level—almost, but not quite. The action is not advanced by the dialogue, which needs tightening up and pointing out.

The story of a tow boat pushing eight barges up the Mississippi river in the teeth of a rising flood would seem made to order for this author.

Richard Bissell

"High Water" displays little of the love for the river and river towns, the intimate knowledge of life on the towboats, the cordial relations between the rivermen and their sweethearts, which made "A Stretch on the River" so attractive.

Nor does it indicate any of the talent for satire which was introduced into "7½ Cents" and which encouraged a London reviewer of the English edition (retitled "A Gross of Pajamas") to express the hope that we were seeing the rise of a satiric talent on the order of Sinclair Lewis.

"High Water" starts at a Katz Drug Store in St. Louis. The last chapter starts at the same Katz Drug Store and winds up at City Hall. In between Mr. Bissell mentions such familiar objects as the Alton lock, Boatmen's Bank, Hannibal, Callaway county, Famous-Barr, Grafton, the Mark Twain Hotel, Eads Bridge, Budweiser, the Waterways Journal, and the Marine Hospital. His heroine is Marie Chouteau, "one of the St. Louis Chouteaus" according to her.

His hero, the mate of the Royal Prince, Duke Snyder (Bissell likes to use baseball players' names, sometimes slightly changed as here) discovers Marie marooned on top of her house six miles from Hannibal. But this does not happen until page 174; and while the publishers make much of Marie, showing her on the dust jacket marooned without a shirt, Mr. Bissell does not make very much of her at all, and as far as this reviewer is concerned he might as well not have brought her up.

The Royal Prince finally piles up on the C.B.&Q. railroad drawbridge at Quincy, Ill., and all hands are drowned except Duke, Marie, and a few others, but the event is without drama or interest.

In one incident of the book Duke and Marie are on their way to City Hall in St. Louis to get married. They stop in at a restaurant with the Grease Cup, who is the chief engineer; and Marie is so torn between raspberry pie and the chocolate whipped cream pie that Duke orders both for her: house six miles from Hannibal. But this does not happen until page 174; and while the publishers make much of Marie, showing her on the dust jacket marooned without a shirt, Mr. Bissell does not make very much of her at all, and as far as this reviewer is concerned he might as well not have brought her up.

"I told you this St. Louis was a wild town, honey," I said. "Yeah, this here town is wide open when it comes to them tantalizing pastry goods," the Grease Cup said.

So even in "High Water" Mr. Bissell can be amusing when he likes. The trouble is that in this book he doesn't like often enough.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Old Wounds That Still Hurt

WASHINGTON.

PLENTY probably will be said in Nov. 2 election post-mortems about a situation that strikes the observer of congressional election campaigns over the country. This is how the Republican party is suffering from a handicap common to a party long out of office in the early shake-down period of its return to office.

This is the handicap of internal rivalries and jockeying for power that is intensified at the outset of a new regime. In the case of the Republican party this handicap is magnified because of the deep schism that developed between the General Eisenhower and the Senator Taft wings of the party at the 1952 convention. Robert A. Taft, that rift was smothered temporarily in the shower of roses in which Gen. Eisenhower was sent to his triumphant election.

A show of harmony was preserved thereafter on the national level by the co-operation between the late Ohio Senator and the President in the first session of the Eighty-third Congress.

Now, however, the seam begins to show again in the congressional election campaign. That campaign imposes responsibility upon state organizations and the latent antagonisms and jealousies in those between the Old Guard and the Eisenhower element rise again to the surface to impede all-out, co-operative endeavor.

The Case of Case.

There is not, as in the 1952 presidential election campaign, the symbol of a candidate—when he was himself, a candidate—to unite the factions and inspire a common front.

This is especially harmful to the Republican party. Its strong point always has been good organization, much more so than with the Democrats. A smoothly-working organization is needed to get out as big a vote as possible from the party faithful.

Party maneuvering is being heavily upon getting out the full organization vote which at times has been enough to win in the normally light vote of off-year elections.

Most dramatic, as well as most publicized, among conflicts between the G.O.P. Old Guard and the Eisenhower group is the bitter vendetta of old line Republicans in New Jersey against Representative Clifford P. Case, a recognized Eisenhower adherent, who is the party's candidate for Senator.

Old Guard Lies Down.

This is not an isolated case. You find similar spilt elsewhere as you move about the country or, in some cases, discussion in the Republican organization traceable to various causes, including attempts of the Eisenhowerites to capture the party organization.

Though not so pyrotechnic or vengeful anywhere else as it seems to be in New Jersey, the back-biting is potentially damaging in a number of states where there are, as in Jersey, key contests that will decide which party will control the Senate in the incoming Eighty-fourth Congress.

It takes the form of the Old Guard lying down on the job, "sitting this one out" as it frequently is put, or refusing to contribute financially—or both. There is Ohio where Republicans are counting upon picking up a Senate seat now held by a Democrat—Senator Thomas A. Burke. Ill feeling still hangs on from the hot Republican primary battle between Representative George H. Bender, who won and is the Republican candidate, and William Saxbe, speaker of the House in Ohio. George Bender was always a Taft for President but the Senator's son, Robert A. Taft Jr., supported Saxbe.

Young Turks Rise Up.

In Montana a fight in the Republican organization ended up with a new and young state chairman. He assumed his duties only late August and shouldered the admittedly difficult job of trying to unseat the veteran Democrat, Senator James F. Murray, who is opposed by Representative A. D'Ewart, Republican.

In Wyoming also there was a shake-up in the party organization, resulting in a new chairman. That hampers the Republican effort to defeat former Democratic Senator Joseph T. O'Mahoney, who is seeking the seat previously held by a Democrat, the late Lester C. Hunt, but now occupied temporarily by a Republican appointee.

In New Mexico a "young Turk" uprising deposed an older Republican regime some time back. The effect is being felt in the Republican campaign there to try to oust another veteran Democratic Senator, Clinton P. Anderson, and replace him with a Republican, Gov. Ed McChesney.

Fight on Dworshak.

In California some Old Guard leaders are reported holding back on Senator Thomas H. Kuchel, who was appointed by former Gov. Earl Warren before the latter became chief justice, and withholding financial help from this Republican who is hard-pressed by Representative Sam Yorty, Democrat.

New G.O.P. state chairmen have taken over in recent months in Nevada and Idaho. In the latter, Senator Henry C. Dworshak, the Republican incumbent, is in a tough fight with former Democratic Senator, Glen Taylor, who was Henry Wallace's vice-presidential running-mate in the ill-starred and Communist-ridden Progressive party in 1948.

So it goes. These are a few samples of Republican obstacles.

CANDIDATE DIES

Watson, G.O.P. Nominee, Had Been Given Little Chance of Winning.

TAMPA, Fla., Oct. 25 (AP)—J. Tom Watson, Republican candidate for Governor of Florida, died yesterday. He had been ill several months. He was 68 years old.

His illness had prevented him from active campaigning, but he had said doctors assured him he was recovering and would be able to assume the duties of Governor next January if elected.

A former state attorney general, noted for his fight for Florida's anti-closed shop amendment, Watson switched from the Democratic party a short time before announcing his candidacy for Governor on the G.O.P. platform. Twice previously he had unsuccessfully sought the Democratic nomination for Governor, in 1932 and 1948.

There was no immediate statement from Republican officials about selection of a successor.

Watson had been given only a remote chance of defeating the Democratic candidate, State Senator Leroy Collins. Watson said his principal reason for running was to further the two-party system in Florida. He made no victory claims.

Watson also was an unsuccessful candidate for the state supreme court and in 1950, his last try as a Democrat, for Congress from the First district. He was elected state attorney general in 1940 and re-elected in 1944. His two terms were marked with disputes over labor issues and frequently with other members of the cabinet.

Previously he had served one term in the State Legislature.

Watson entered a hospital in July for an eye operation but complications developed. He reported later he had suffered a light blood clot which left him slightly paralyzed in the left arm and leg, but that he was recovering.

Watson was born in Danville, Va., Nov. 20, 1885.

CHARLES P. SKOURAS FUNERAL

AT ST. SOPHIA CATHEDRAL

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 25—Funeral services for Charles P. Skouras were held today at the Saint Sophia Greek Orthodox Cathedral, which was completed two years ago with funds raised largely by him and his two brothers, George and Spyros. Charles died Friday of a heart attack.

The brothers started as hotel busboys in St. Louis, bought a motion picture theater with their savings and rose rapidly to top positions in the industry. Charles was president of National Theaters, Inc., and its subsidiary, Fox West Coast Theaters.

The services were conducted by Bishop Athenagoras, leader of Greek Orthodox churches in 11 Western states. The body was laid in state in a mausoleum on the Cathedral grounds.

Diversified Art Styles Abound

In Guild's Portrait Exhibition

28 Unusual Pictures Selected From 98 Entries by Fred Conway and Miss Mary Powell.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON.

The 1954 Artists' Guild Portrait Exhibition, including 28 pictures chosen from 98 entries of artists living in St. Louis or within 50 miles of the city, opened with a reception yesterday at the guild, 812 Union boulevard.

In styles presented, the show seems more diversified and interesting than any other in the post-World War II series. It was selected by a jury with high standards of esthetic quality and craftsmanship but with few fixed notions on what a portrait must be. Jurors were Fred Conway, Washington University art teacher, and Miss Mary Powell, City Art Museum education supervisor.

Siegfried Reinhardt's "Debbie" blends at least three manners of expression. The child's sensitive face is meticulously painted, with each wisp and strand of flaxen hair made magically distinct. Lace collar pattern is reproduced almost with the naive detail of a primitive, while the texturally enriched background is completely abstract.

Similar faithfulness to sitter's appearance and freedom in treatment of background mark Mildred Bailey Carpenter's "Lupe," with Mexican foliage casually suggested, and James B. Fisher Jr.'s lifelike "Mrs. Christian Peper," where unobtrusive impressionistic color patches are kept away from centers of interest.

The paintings of Debbie, Lupe and Mrs. Peper placed respectively first, second and third in the judges' scoring. Of four equal-rank honorable mentions awarded, Jeana Dale's picture of a small boy playing with a puppet catches the happy solitude of a child in his own world. Thelma Notter Webb's portrait of fellow artist Wanda Penny is at once a good likeness and a work of Cezannesque solidity.

The jury's broad-mindedness is indicated by the other honorable mentions. John Saportia's "Young Lady" is less a portrait than a swirling abstract pattern of rare charm. Quentin McChristy's loosely sketched "Doel Reed" shows the noted printmaker as a mere element in his studio. More attention is paid to artistic paraphernalia than to Reed's face or figure.

Philip Gronemeyer's "Self-Portrait," part of his recent one-man show, is like McChristy's entry in its emphasis on characteristic surroundings. Helen M. Smith's "Study of Cezanne" exaggerates that pioneer modernist's use of color to represent relationships of planes.

Eleanor Zacher's "Boy With

Cat" is likewise somewhat off-trail for a portrait show. Green accents in the lad's hair balance the mass of a green-furred cat. Marion Catarnichi's "Pierre," a pencil drawing, makes a design out of a face.

Others whose unusual entries were chosen for display include Richard R. Caemmerer Jr., Ruth Field Doughton, Enid Hood, Amour Krupnick, Laura Skorat, Peppel, Blanche Skrainka and Alice M. Wortman.

The show will close Nov. 2.

Exhibit at Museum.

City Art Museum attendance totaled 2030 persons yesterday, first Sunday of the St. Louis showing of "Westward the Way," Louisiana Purchase commemorative display. The exhibition will close here Dec. 6 to reopen in Minneapolis, Minn.

Most popular galleries with yesterday's crowds, largely parents with children, were No. 31, filled with 33 pictures of birds and mammals, and No. 16, holding 55 paintings of Indians. The show is outstanding for holding youngsters' attention for unusually long periods, attendants remarked.

HOWARD KELSEY TO PRESENT ORGAN RECITAL TONIGHT

Howard Kelsey, Washington University organist, will present the annual Avis H. Blewett Memorial recital tonight at 8:30 o'clock at Second Baptist Church, 500 North Kingshighway.

Kelsey will be accompanied by Walter Kessler, who plays English horn in the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The program includes Bach's Prelude and Fugue in E Flat; Concerto for Brass and Organ by Seth Bingham and Sowerby's Prelude on the King's Majesty and Ballade for English Horn and Organ. Short works by Castelnuovo-Tedesco, Dickinson, Gabrieli, Karg-Elert, Marcello and Purcell also will be played.

ILSE BING TO SPEAK TONIGHT AT PEOPLE'S ART CENTER

Ilse Bing, noted photographer of New York and Paris, will give an illustrated lecture today at 8:30 p.m. at the People's Art Center, Community Chest agency at 3637 Grandel square.

Miss Bing, whose exhibition of 40 photographs opened recently at Junior League headquarters here, will discuss problems of portrait photography.

N. DAKOTA'S SNOW-COVERED
FIELDS SEARCHED FOR BOY, 4

POWERS LAKE, N. D., Oct. 25 (AP)—About 100 searchers tramped over snow-covered fields near here today, continuing the search that started eight days ago for 4-year-old LaVern Enget. A National Guard unit taking part in the search was recalled

SUNDAY AS RAIN AND SNOW FELL IN THE DESOLATE SEARCH AREA IN NORTH-WESTERN NORTH DAKOTA.

LaVern, son of Mr. and Mrs. Obert Enget, disappeared Oct. 17 after following his father into a pasture. The searchers today were using farm and hunting dogs. Authorities said a large scale search would be resumed as soon as snow melts in the area.

3 BOB CROSBY SONS ARE FOUND AFTER ALL-NIGHT SEARCH

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25 (AP)—A neighbor boy on horseback today found bandleader Bob Crosby's three young sons, whose disappearance before supper yesterday touched off an all-night search by 90 policemen in rugged hills near their home.

Thirteen-year-old Tim Wellman, son of movie director William Wellman, spotted Christopher, 12 years old, George Robert Jr., 10, and Stephen, 8, in precipitous Barrington Canyon.

The Crosby youngsters, who disappeared from home without a word about 5 p.m., were laden with camping gear. They were unharmed.

Christopher said he and his brothers, all nephews of crooner Bing Crosby, left home because "we don't like our nurse."

The children's nurse is Miss Teresa Flynn. The Crosbys, who have two other children, Cathleen, 15, and Julie Maria, 3, said Miss Flynn had been with them three years and is a "wonderful nurse."

The boys admitted they saw police searching for them during the night. They were found three miles from their home.

TO DEATH AS SOVIET SPIES

TEHRAN, Oct. 25 (AP)—An Army court sentenced five Army and Air Force officers to death today on charges of participating in a Soviet spy network. The sentences brought to 21 the number of condemned officers who will face firing squads soon unless an appeal court or the Shah intervenes. Ten men were executed last week.

An estimated 650 await trial. All were arrested in a recent anti-Red cleanup and charged with passing United States and Iranian military secrets to the Russians and subversive acts against the Iranian government.

CANCER SANATORIUM RAIDED BY FOUR HUNTING NARCOTICS

SAVANNAH, Mo., Oct. 25 (AP)—Four masked and armed men forced their way into a privately operated cancer sanatorium yesterday, bound five employees with wire and left after a futile search for narcotics. Police reported the men overpowered night watchman Mason Crawford and made prisoners of three nurses, Mrs. Beatrice Barton, Mrs. Grace Myers and Mrs. Goldie Powell. After searching an operating room and drug room and trying to crack a wall safe, the men herded their prisoners into a supply room and bound their hands. After two hours the night watchman managed to free himself and released the nurses. Andrew county Sheriff Carl Fields said nothing was stolen. He said he believes the robbers were the same men who raided the hospital in similar fashion in 1950, when they escaped with some narcotics.

DEMOCRATS AHEAD AS CONGRESS RACE NEARS A CLIMAX

1946, when the G.O.P. won control of both the House and the Senate, they polled 57 per cent of the vote outside the South.

At Least 6 Factors.

Analysis of survey data reveals that the term "off-year reaction" is wholly inadequate to explain the underlying factors in the political situation today.

Surveys show there are at least six separate factors which must be taken into account. These factors are:

1. The numerical advantage of the Democrats.

2. The political arithmetic posed by the Democratic South.

3. The preference of most voters for the Democratic party as the best party for their self-interests.

4. The vote of independents today.

5. Turnout and the probable number of voters.

6. The popularity of President Eisenhower.

Four of the six factors combine to give the Democrats their popular strength today:

1. The numerical advantage of the Democrats.

A substantial number of voters today claim allegiance to the Democratic party. A total of 46 per cent of the electorate considers itself Democratic as compared to 34 per cent who classify themselves as Republicans and 20 per cent as independents.

Another survey has shown that if every citizen of voting age were required to register either as a Republican or as a Democrat, the Democrats would outnumber Republicans by an even wider margin.

2. The tremendous advantage that the Democrats have in the political arithmetic posed by the Solid South.

From election to election, the Democrats usually win somewhere between 113 and 118 seats in the South regardless of whether the Democratic party shows great strength outside the South.

Starting with an assured backlog of 114 of the 120 seats in the South, the Democrats need to pick up only 104 more seats from the rest of the country for the necessary 218 majority. Since there are 315 seats outside the South, the Democrats have only won a little less than one-third of these northern contests.

Republicans, on the other hand, must win more than two-thirds of them to capture control of the House. Within the last generation, the G.O.P. has done this just twice—in 1946 and in 1952.

3. The majority of people today identify their self-interests with the Democratic party.

In the absence of any overriding issues in a congressional campaign, the "pocket-book nerve" determines the way most people vote. A recent survey found that almost twice as many persons say the Democratic party can best protect or improve their economic lot than say the Republican party can do so.

4. Independent voters, who hold the balance of power in national elections, have this year switched back to the Democrats after having voted overwhelmingly for Gen. Eisenhower in 1952.

In 1952, two out of every three independent voters voted Republican. Today, among those independent voters who have made up their minds, 53 per cent name the Democrats as their choice in the forthcoming elections.

The fact that in recent years the Democratic party has been able to attract the majority of the independent vote to the Democratic camp has been one of the reasons for the long string of Democratic victories since 1932.

11 PERSONS ROUTED BY FIRE

Eleven persons were routed early yesterday from a two-story brick flat at 5952 Hamilton terrace by a fire which caused damage estimated by firemen at $750.

Louis Goldstein, who lives on the first floor, said he was awakened by the odor of smoke and aroused his wife and two children. He then alerted the upstairs occupant, Charles Anfield, who left the building with his wife and five children.

Washington, Lincoln Carved in Sapphires

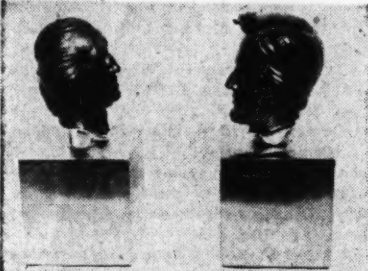

By Mary Kimbrough

THE faces of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln which have appeared in nearly every medium and in every size from pennies and postage stamps to the side of a mountain, now have been reproduced in sapphire stones valued at $250,000 each — just because two Armenian-born jewelers are glad to be Americans. The busts of the two Presidents, approximately three inches tall, are on display through Thursday at Mermod-Jaccard-King.

Owned by James and Harry Kazanjian, Los Angeles gem merchants who came to the United States in 1918, the statues are two of a proposed group of great Americans. A third, of President Eisenhower, is now being carved, and Thomas Jefferson is expected to be added. None will be for sale, but the collection will be exhibited to the public and later presented to a museum for permanent display.

THE KAZANJIAN BROTHERS have said that their reason for turning the gems into likenesses of great Americans is their gratitude to their adopted country. They chose Lincoln for the first because they came up the hard way themselves from immigrant boys to established merchants, and they appreciated the opportunities in a country where such a man as Lincoln could travel from a log cabin to the White House. They first set up their gem-cutting shop on

THE SAPPHIRE BUSTS OF WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN.

New York's lower east side, then moved to the West Coast in 1928. There they prospered and in 1946 they were able to bid for five of the world's largest sapphires. The gems could have been broken up and cut as jewels at a handsome profit of hundreds of thousands of dollars, but the Kazanjians decided instead to use them for their "Great Americans" series.

THE PROJECT, however, faced almost as many difficulties as did the jewelers' early careers. It required a year of negotiations even to obtain the huge gem from which the Lincoln head is carved. Then came the problem of creating the likeness without marring the stone. A Missourian, Norman Maness, a carpenter who, because of a war injury, turned to steel engraving and die cutting, was chosen to do the actual carving with the counseling services of Merrill Gage, professor of sculpture at the University of Southern California. Gage had studied with Gutzon Borglum, creator of the Lincoln and Washington heads on Mount Rushmore.

First, Maness tried to cut the 2302-carat gem — largest known sapphire in the world — with carborundum, but the sapphire was too hard. Then he laboriously worked with diamond grit until the approximate shape of the head began to emerge and he could work on the fine detail of the features. There was a temporary, but serious, setback, when a fracture developed by the nose and after it was corrected, the entire face was done over. Finishing touches were applied with tiny wheels only one sixty-fourth of an inch in diameter.

He completed the job in September, 1951, nearly two years after its beginning.

THE LIKENESS OF WASHINGTON was finished this year by Harry B. Derian, sculptor, designer and artist who spent more than two years in experimentation and research before making a carving on the actual stone. He then made seven models of the gem at various stages of the carving, perfecting each one before starting the work on the original piece.

This project was considered even more difficult than the first, as the sapphire was so opaque that even X-rays couldn't penetrate its depth to show how and where to cut. Working from Gilbert Stuart's portrait of Washington and Jean Houdon's bust, Derian held the stone in his hand for more than 2500 working hours as he carefully cut into it to reproduce the facial features.

BECAUSE THE HARDNESS of sapphire is second only to that of diamonds, he had to use diamond-tipped tools to cut the stone. In the 18 months he spent on the project, he wore out 72 of the instruments and another 52 were partially worn. The Washington head now weighs 1056 carats.

The likeness of President Eisenhower is being created from a 2097-carat blue-black star sapphire. It will require another several months to complete.

Schooling by Phone

By Glen R. Shepherd, M.D.

SUPPOSE your son is laid up by illness. What happens to his schooling? If it's a one- to three-week illness, he simply makes up his school work when he returns to school. But suppose it's a chronic illness such as encephalitis, muscular dystrophy or something else that makes it physically impossible for your child to return to school for months or years. What then?

It all depends on the community. Most have visiting teachers. The State of Iowa went further. Iowa educators pioneered with an interesting experiment to help such chronically ill, or crippled, children better continue their schooling away from school. It's reported in a special article by George R. Ludwig, of the Iowa State Department of Public Instruction, in a recent issue. Iowa tried school-to-home telephone equipment.

THIS CONSISTS of a two-way public address system between the classroom and the child at home, connected by special telephone lines. The child hears all the activities of the classroom. When called on to recite or participate in group discussions, the shut-in can manipulate a switch and be heard by the entire class. The homebound child, from his bedside located far from the school, can participate in the classroom program in every way except visually. Teachers can supply charts and pictures to make up for that.

Ludwig reports that by using such equipment, some children have graduated as honor students and gone on to college without ever having been inside the school. The home-to-school teaching in this way began in 1938.

The Iowa Division of Special Education recently conducted a survey among 52 Iowa physicians who had approved this method for their young patients. All of the 27 doctors who returned completed opinions were satisfied with this method of instruction.

Furthermore, 18 letters made specific mention of the morale benefits. For instance, "It has a very definite boosting effect on the morale as well as giving her a chance to keep up in her studies; there is a bad emotional factor when a patient has to fall back from the group she originally started with."

THE PHYSICIANS generally felt that it was most helpful to the morale of their patients by allowing them to keep up with their classmates and by keeping in contact with class and teacher. Improving mental health seems to improve physical well-being.

It's also very useful for diverting the homebound child. The problem of what to do for a chronically ill child at home really bothers busy parents. Classroom assignments help to fill those dull "what-to-do" hours.

Only children of normal or superior intelligence can benefit. If a child has trouble keeping up with his classwork when he goes to school or if he's unable to work on his own initiative, this system cannot help him.

This school-to-home telephone service doesn't replace the visiting teacher. Combinations of visiting-teacher visits and the telephone link between classroom and homebound child enable average children to keep abreast of their classmates.

This system has been considered or tried out in other communities in the country. It certainly deserves more attention by boards of education and parent-teacher associations.

Mrs. Mendelson Bach of St. Louis Describes Impressions of Her Tour of Israel

By Clarissa Start

VISITING the land of Israel is like seeing "the Bible come to life," according to Mrs. Mendelson Bach, who returned recently from that country. One of 15 American and Canadian women invited to view the progress being made with the aid of Israel bond dollars, Mrs. Bach thought she had an intellectual appreciation of the young nation. She found she had not anticipated the tremendous impressions she received.

"My friends here at home say my eyes light up when I talk about Israel," she says, "and I don't doubt it. It's amazing how much they've achieved in six years. But the thing that impressed me most was the vitality, the dynamic quality of life there."

The delegation of women, who had not known each other previously but became good friends on their tour, left New York on Aug. 3, via El Al airlines, and Mrs. Bach recalls that her first thrill of the trip was walking out the airfield and seeing the plane with its Mogen David insignia.

Airline crew members provided a foretaste of the spirit of Israel, she says, as they consisted of Jewish and non-Jewish flyers, many of whom had ferried commercial planes to Israel and become so fervent in their admiration that they stayed on with the national airline.

On the drive from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, Mrs. Bach's impression was primarily of the change in the terrain, the flat lands with oppressive heat and a few kilometers beyond, the cool hills; secondly, she noted the work that had been done with soil reclamation through terracing, and finally, as they drove through the Judean hills, she was surprised at the narrowness of the corridor through which they traveled.

"There is sadness," she says, "because, like Moses, you can only look into the promised land. Even three priests, who had traveled with us, hoping to make a pilgrimage into the old city were not permitted to cross over from the new. We stayed at the Kind David hotel from which you could get an occasional glimpse of the old city and its historic sites, but in back of the formal gardens is a barren waste of no man's land and then Arab territory."

While all is not peaceful in Israel and even now "shots ring out in the night," the growth in building and industry has been prodigious.

MRS. MENDELSON BACH . . . "FRIENDS HERE AT HOME SAY MY EYES LIGHT UP WHEN I TALK ABOUT ISRAEL."

"To me the one industry that typifies all Israel is the Yuval Gad in Ashkelon, in the south near the Egyptian border," said Mrs. Bach. "Here they make 66-inch pipes that bring water and fertility to the entire country. The original land of milk and honey was such because they had a fine irrigation system in those times. The desert is not a natural desert but a man-made one, and now where pipes have been laid, there is greenery again."

IT WAS the head of the Yuval Gad who told the delegation: "We have two aims, to make pipes and to make citizens," the latter a reference to the many Oriental refugees who live and work there.

"There has been complete integration of peoples in industry and everyday living," Mrs. Bach says. "Social workers go into the homes of the newcomers teaching housewives about nutrition and vitamins, helping them keep attractive homes and gardens. There are classes in adult education and women who have never known any type of freedom in their native lands are attending them. To hear the little children, many of whom knew only persecution and degradation formerly, say the Shabbat Shalom is a wonderful thing."

About 50 per cent of industrial employees are women and there are women active in every strata of life, women doctors, lawyers, a high ranking Navy officer, and one woman cabinet member, Golda Myerson. Along with Miss Meyerson, the women on tour met Mrs. Ben Zvi, wife of the president, Prime Minister Moshe Sharet, Minister of Finance Levi Eshkol, and Minister of Development Dov Joseph.

In their two and one-half week stay, they traveled the length and breadth of the land visiting farms, factories, air installations. At Haifa, they observed how bond money had been used to deepen the Kishon river, so that fishing boats could be harbored there, permitting the bay of Haifa to be used for ocean-going vessels. They saw the three levels of the city of Haifa, including Mount Carmel at the top, visited the Weizmann Institute where atomic research is being carried out, studied water pumping stations in the mountains near Safat, viewed Ramat Rahel, occupied by six nations during the war, and traveled the Road of Courage, which was built under heavy fire. On one trip they saw salt being taken from the Dead sea; later that day, they swam in the Mediterranean at the opposite side of the country.

PART of their visit consisted of a housewives' tour into the homes of average families. Shortages of electricity and water no longer exist so everyday living is on a normal level, and even in the most modest homes, Mrs. Bach noted, the presence of books and paintings. Life is far from grim in Israel, Mrs. Bach emphasizes. People work hard but they also find time to go dancing and dining in outdoor cafes. There are theaters, cinemas, and in progress, a magnificent new structure for the Israel Philharmonic orchestra, which gives concerts in halls and on hillside. The city of Ashkelon—"built on a plan, many of our cities could copy"—has an impressive civic center with town hall, museum, library. There is an abundance of flowers, gardens reminiscent of New Orleans.

Hotels are "as plushy as any resort hotels here" and travelers may enjoy iced coffee made with ice cream and topped with whipped cream, plentiful fruits and vegetables, Muscat grapes that "taste like perfume," delicious Jaffa oranges, and an exotic new hybrid, a cross between a melon and a pineapple. Citrus groves and peanuts have been planted along the old sea road. Israeli exports now include granite and chemicals, peanut butter and beer.

Mrs. Bach, who lives at 7515 Buckingham drive, hopes to return to Israel some day with her 10-year-old daughter, Marie. Meanwhile she has been making speeches here and in other cities in the Israel bond selling campaign, trying to impart her feelings concerning the inhabitants of Israel.

"The bus driver who took us around was a famous hero of the war of liberation," she says, "and he was one of many who expressed gratitude for bond dollars. But greater than that, he told us, was their feeling of gratitude for our friendship, and for the opportunity to work with dignity and earn their own livelihood."

Before You Paint.

WHAT with all these new fast drying odorless paints, the range in stock colors and new and improved methods of application, some several million people will probably be doing their own interior decorating this month.

Some of the jobs are going to turn out well and some are going to turn out bad and the chances are that the reason the bad ones were bad is that the paint was applied over a dirty surface.

It doesn't make any difference if you are painting over wallpaper, old paint or a fresh unpainted surface—if there are dust, dirt and grease on the surface the paint is either not going to hold or is going to dry with streaks in it. The rule to follow is to be sure and wash the surface before you apply the paint. With all the soot and smog about these days almost every surface that has been around for a few months is likely to have a thin coating of something and, of course, it's a dead certainty that there will be a thin coat of grease on the walls and ceilings of bathrooms and kitchens.

For ordinary surfaces, plain soap and water will do fine for removing the dirt and after the surface has been washed, rinse with clear water. If the dirt won't respond to this treatment, try a little washing soda with the water.

About the best thing to use for the job is a sponge for with this you can keep most of the excess water from dripping to the floor. But just to play safe, cover the floor with a cloth or papers before you start to work. And it's best if you start at the bottom of the wall and work up.

When you are broiling lean steak, brush it with olive oil and sprinkle it with lemon juice.

YES ☐ NO ☐

Answer to Question 1. YES. Encourage them, but never help them do anything they can do for themselves. This is the policy used in rehabilitating wounded veterans. Many amputees are probably making finer achievements than they would have made without their handicaps.

Answer to Question 2. YES. Genuine good looks stem from good health, and doctors know more today about insuring the health of mother and baby, even before birth, than in the past. After birth, too, these children have a better chance than their parents did, because of increased medical knowledge on feeding, developing mental and physical health, and personality.

Answer to Question 3. FALSE. Research shows that children of kind but firm parents have better personalities, are more successful and self-confident, than children whose

Teen's Dream-Date

By Elinor Williams

GIRLS tell me that their idea of a dream-date is a boy who——Tells who he is when he telephones and skips the "guess who this is?" routine, which can be embarrassing.

—Asks a girl to do something definite like go to a movie, bowl or even a walk instead of merely asking for "a date." Girls like to know what to get ready for—a bowling date or a party.

—Comes up with some suggestions of his own when the evening is young and he asks that old "what shall we do?" question. After all, a girl doesn't know the state of her date's billfold unless he gives her a hint of what kind of date-goings he's prepared to finance.

—Doesn't spend his date-time raving about or flirting with other girls. And doesn't stare at them either! Your date wants—and has a right to expect—to be the only girl on your mind during your date.

—Doesn't urge a girl to do things she doesn't want to do or doesn't think she should do . . . smoke, drink, stay out too late, drive too fast, park, etc.

—Doesn't argue when she reminds that all good things come to an end and it's time to head for home at the "deadline" set by her parents.

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Dear Martha:

HAVE three children and I still love my husband although he has been running around with a divorced woman for the past year. Because of the children I have not left him. Do you think I am doing right? On the surface our home is serene as we never argue in front of the children and I try to ignore the "other woman" situation. Am I a fool to treat this ugly fact as though it didn't exist? WORRIED.

Some women have tried to fight this problem with indifference—and sometimes they have won. Others have fought it more or less successfully by facing the facts and forcing their husbands to make a choice of saving or throwing away their marriage. Who can tell which is the better way and which carries the greater chance of winning? But it would seem that whether you ignore it or not, you are gaining time by keeping your home serene and refusing to draw the children into an unhappy situation. The wife always has the upper hand, remember, and if you can swallow your pride to the extent of sitting by and waiting, you at least have some chance of bringing your husband back to his senses. By walking out, you discard that single chance. But you need professional help in deciding which your next step should be, and I would urge you to seek that help immediately.

Dear Martha:

WHAT CAN WE DO ABOUT A GIRL in our office who brags about herself all the time and keeps acting like she's real important, when the truth is that she has no authority at all? I guess it sounds like a silly thing to fuss about, but she irritates the rest of us by constantly sounding off and trying to push us around. She's the newest employee there, too.

Sometimes, the most irritating things about a person are the tiny, seemingly trivial faults such as bragging and trying to act important. One way not to help is to gang up on her and make her feel like an outsider. Then she'll try to throw her weight around all the more. Maybe if a few of you asked her to lunch or made sure that her opinion was invited so that she would feel that you all cared something for her, she wouldn't have to resort to the phony bragadocio that makes her so unpopular. More than almost anything else, a person needs to feel important and when that need isn't met, he's inclined to show off as this girl has.

Martha Carr's leaflets on general party games and pen and pencil games will help suggest entertainment for your next party. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Affection for Wife

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MANY a husband thinks that his responsibility to his wife is fully met by providing her with a good home in a good neighborhood and charge accounts at good stores. What more can he want? He's giving her a free hand, and plenty of women would be glad to trade places with her.

Mr. C. is such a husband, I suspect. Anyhow, his wife does not seem to be completely satisfied and he writes me for sympathy.

"ISN'T THERE SOME WAY in which a wife can be encouraged to be more self-sufficient?" he inquires. "I give my wife everything she needs and never complain about what she does. Plenty of women would think they were in heaven, if they had the freedom to do as they please as my wife does! But she is continually complaining that I neglect her. Does a woman think that her husband has nothing to do except to wait on her, when she is fully capable of waiting on herself?"

Women are peculiar creatures, aren't they, Mr. C.? A lot of them seem to feel that they need more than a roof and a checkbook, in order to be perfectly happy.

Let's stand off and take a look at the picture, with the help of psychologist Raymond B. Cattell, who has been preparing a scale to measure the extent to which husbands really show affection for their wives. The scale is still in the preparatory stage but he gives in a recent book ("A Guide to Mental Testing," London, 1953) many questions which he thinks indicative of affection.

- LET'S SEE if some of these would apply to you.
1. Husband carries wife's picture in pocketbook, has it on his desk, etc.
 2. Husband senses wife's moods and respects them.
 3. Husband voices appreciation of wife's efforts on his behalf.
 4. Husband foregoes doing what he enjoys so that he may accompany wife to functions that interest her.
 5. Husband plans special treats to celebrate anniversaries.
 6. Husband brings wife small tokens of affection, i.e., flowers, books, music, perfumes, pretty clothes, etc.
 7. Husband does not resist interruptions of work by affectionate or friendly advances on part of wife.
 8. Husband and wife share their hopes and dreams together.

That's all I have room for, but there are plenty more, Mr. C. Dr. Cattell and his associates think that such behavior as above described is surer evidence of love for a wife, than merely providing her with a good home and a checkbook. Ask your wife whether she agrees with them. Then ask yourself whether you can stretch a point, and begin to include a few such items in your busy daily life.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A TEEN-AGE READER sends the following question: "Don't you think parents are unfair to make their daughter promise that she will not smoke even one cigarette when she goes with her friends to the drug store for a soda? No one smokes very much but I am the only non-smoker in the group at such times and all the others laugh about it. We're second and third-year high school."

I am sorry to disappoint you, but I have to agree with your mother. In my opinion, smoking in public by young girls is not "grown up," but very cheap behavior.

"I HAVE SPENT the last two weekends at the house of my boy friend. How can I show my appreciation to his parents for their hospitality? May I send his mother a present and what would be suitable to send?"

You write an appreciative letter telling her how much you enjoyed your visit. That is all—unless she happened to speak of something that she especially likes, and you are able to send it to her.

Growth of An Economic News Service

Dow Jones Co. Started With Hand-Written Notes, Grew to Nation-Wide Network, Newspaper

By Virginia Irwin

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.

IN the fall of 1882, a couple of enterprising young men, Charles H. Dow and Edward J. Jones, set themselves up in business in a small office in the rear of 15 Wall street, in the heart of Manhattan's big money district. Out of this cubbyhole, they issued each day a steady stream of handwritten financial news bulletins which were delivered by messengers on foot and bicycle to nearby New York brokerage offices, banks and business firms.

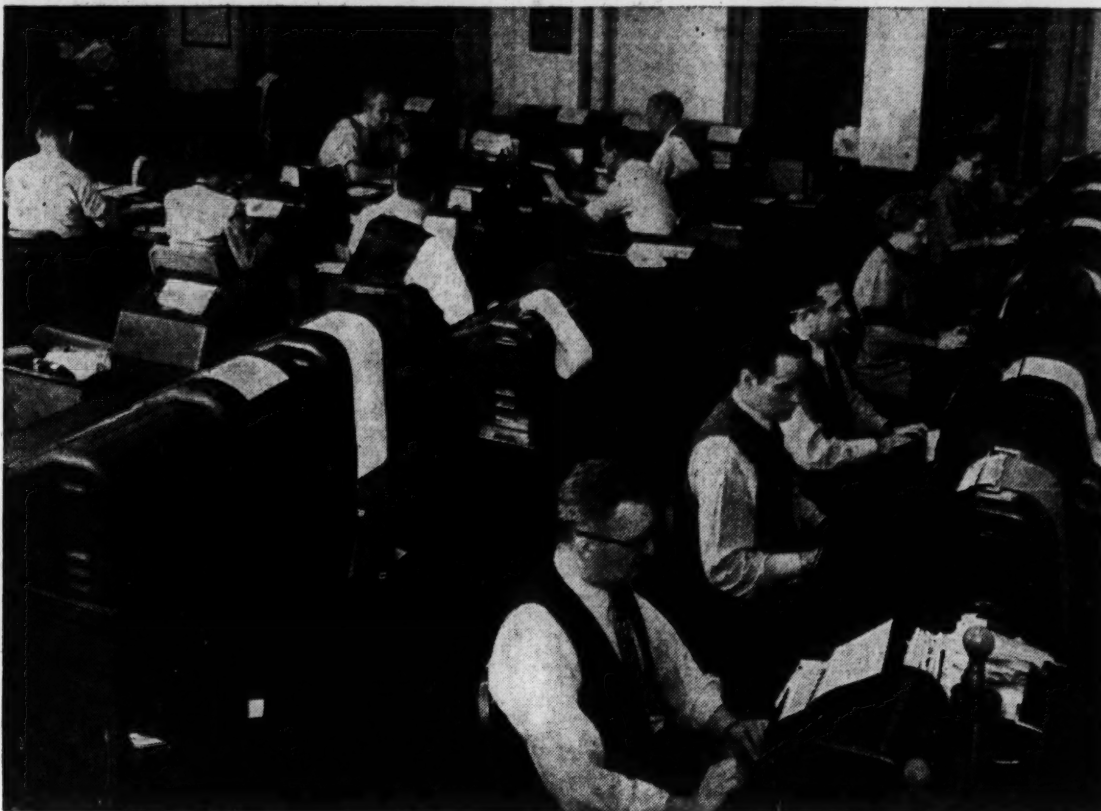

Soon the partners had established a reputation for being able to furnish reliable and competently reported economic news. As America in the 1880-1890 decade experienced a period of remarkable national growth and expansion, Dow Jones & Co., Inc., grew with it.

Now celebrating its seventy-second anniversary, Dow Jones has for many years been a main source of economic news in the United States. In gathering and transmitting financial news the company today uses more than 70,000 miles of leased wires in the United States and a large network of transcontinental wire facilities in Canada. An average of 31,000 words a day, is flashed by wire to users of Dow Jones News Ticker Service in 414 cities of the United States and Canada. Daily news is carried in the Wall Street Journal, founded by Dow and Jones in the summer of 1889 and today the twenty-sixth largest weekday newspaper in the United States. Weekly news is published in Barron's National Business and Financial Weekly founded in 1921 and today considered an authority on financial-market trends and investment values.

When 31-year-old Charles Dow, a black-haired, full-bearded calm six-footer, and Edward Jones, a skinny hot-tempered red-head, left the news agency for which they had been working to set up their own operation back in 1882, they began with a force of six people, including themselves. Today Dow Jones employs more than 1200 persons and has fully staffed news bureaus in Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Dallas, Detroit, Houston, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Portland, Ore., San Francisco, St. Louis and Washington, as well as in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto in Canada and in London, England, and Paris, France.

Recently in tracing the earliest operations of Dow Jones, Robert M. Feemster, chairman of the executive committee of the Wall Street Journal, explained: "Each item in those early handwritten Dow Jones news bulletins, known throughout the financial community as 'the slips,' contained no more than a sentence or two. The style of reporting was to say much in as little space as possible. 'Within a year of the company's founding, it started publishing, in November 1883, a printed daily afternoon summary of the bulletins delivered during the day. It was a two-sheet circular called 'Customer's Afternoon Letters.' Soon circulation passed the 1000 mark. This, with some increase in size as time went on, was the forerunner of the daily Wall Street Journal which the partners finally decided to publish after seven pioneer years."

The Journal started as an afternoon paper and its first edition, four pages featured financial briefs, a review of news from other cities, a table of bond quotation and a report on page one of the approaching Jake Kilrain-John L. Sullivan heavyweight championship fight.

The Journal quickly established a reputation for accuracy and, financial giants like Harriman, Hill and Morgan talked willingly to and allowed themselves to be directly quoted by Dow Jones reporters.

AS THE Wall Street Journal grew, Dow Jones continued to expand its other operations. On Jan. 2, 1897, the company began publication of daily average closing prices of representative industrial stocks, and also averages of railroad stocks.

"Mr. Dow's long study of the stock market led to his developing a theory of the relationship between stock market trends and business trends," Feemster explains the origin of the Dow Jones Averages, printed daily on the financial page of the Post-Dispatch and in hundreds of other papers throughout the country.

"The theory called for price averages, for in the words written some years later by the Wall Street Journal's William Peter Hamilton—estimated in his day as one of the country's great editors—'What we need are soulless barometers, price indexes and averages to tell us where we are going and what we may expect. The best, because the most impartial, the most remorseless of these barometers, is the recorded average of prices in the stock exchange.'"

The innovations made by Dow Jones in the field of transmitting financial news mirror the ever-increasing tempo of life from the '90s to the present time.

In 1897 to serve its financial bulletin customers with instantaneous news, Dow Jones installed a page-printing ticker, an awkward machine activated by a clock mechanism that had to be wound every half hour. As time went on, this machine was replaced by improved machines of Dow Jones own manufacture.

"Dow Jones ticker news today is transmitted direct from New York to all customers in the United States," Feemster said. "All Dow Jones News Service tickers, and all standard teletypewriters used for the service, everywhere in the United States, are activated by one sending operation in New York. Dow Jones flashes the news of the world to its ticker-news customers with a speed difficult to comprehend without an intimate working knowledge of the network of communications and the special reporting techniques developed over many years. The time lag between event and publication on the Dow Jones ticker service is measured in seconds, not minutes, for a news story of consequence. Direct telephone lines mesh in with leased telegraph wires and split-second editing and processing techniques to hasten news to readers. "Hundreds of thousands of words of news copy pouring ceaselessly into our New York office must be adapted first for use of the news-ticker service, then sifted again, compared, cut, edited, checked, processed, and fitted into the Wall Street Journal."

a farm owned by the Habst Corp. of St. Louis and written by Winston C. Fournier, bureau manager of the Wall Street Journal in St. Louis.

To provide daily delivery of the Wall Street Journal over the United States, the company now has fully equipped printing and publishing plants strategically located in four cities—New York, Chicago, Dallas and San Francisco.

Publisher of the Wall Street Journal today is 46-year-old Bernard Kilgore, who is also president of Dow Jones.

Although Charles Dow died in 1902 and Edward Jones in 1920, their names continue to be used daily through the Dow Jones Averages in every major newspaper in the United States and the unique organization they founded, Dow Jones & Co., Inc., extends from coast to coast. Incidentally, Dow Jones is hyphenated when used in connection with the averages; the company's name is not.

To illustrate his point that the Journal is no longer a paper for the striped pants boys of the financial section alone, McCormack produced a recent issue which carried a front-page story from Menfro, Mo., headed "Pushbutton Rain." It was the story of sprinkler irrigation on

There were both good and questionable stages in this auction. South's one-spade overall of one heart—i.e., his refusal to jump—was well taken. At the 60 score, South could get a better picture of his partner's hand by listening to North's voluntary action over one spade, than by making a jump bid which might bring an obscure response from North.

North's immediate heart cue bid was the merest shade optimistic, and so was South's final grand-slam effort. North could have had something like and then South would have been at the mercy of the diamond finesse—a bad gamble.

However, things turned out beautifully for South. He took West's opening lead of the heart seven (covered by nine and ten) with his own king, and laid down the trump king. East's showing-out gave South pause, since he would not find it so safe and convenient to set up the long diamond suit and since, more important, East's spade void implied that he might have diamond length. But, after long thought, South came up with a very effective technique. He finessed against the trump jack, cashed the trump ace, and then took the slight risk of finessing for the club king. (East surely should have that card for his vulnerable overall.) Now South drew West's last trump, cashed the ace of hearts, returned to the club ace and ran the last two trumps. This was too much for East: he was squeezed between hearts and diamonds.

Tie a plastic bag over your food chopper when grinding crumbs or foods likely to scatter. And here is another tip. Use sandpaper to help clamp chopper to the table.

"Winged" Silhouette
Anne Fogarty features a new "winged" silhouette which has a longer torso and flares into a full skirt with additional width at the sides and the back. She also likes two other silhouettes. One, called "mobile," is a casual style with easy fullness. Another is the "meteor" sheath that is very straight of line.

Both imported and domestic fabrics, especially pastel tweeds, are used extensively.

MRS. W.H.S.: "I'd like to paint the fireplace wall in my living room, and the entrance hall wall facing it, and the ceiling a light gray; and the rest of the walls in both the living room and entrance a shade of green from a floral drapery. Is this a good idea? Flowers in the drapery are shades of rose and the background is light beige. The rug is gray with a blue leaf, the large curved sofa and one chair are gray, another chair is maroon and tan."

This question is difficult to answer without seeing the actual room, since all the colors in it and where they go, and the exact proportions of the room are determining factors. Your plan might be successful, but there seems to be little reason to use two wall colors and the safer course is to paint all the walls a soft green, or to paint all the living room walls green and the entrance hall walls gray.

EVERYBODY helps with the housework today, especially the manufacturer who comes up with new easy-to-care-for products. One new idea is the sleek and wrinkleless nylon tricot sheets that are just arriving in the stores.

Both a bottom and a top sheet are fitted to make bedmaking a simple matter, and the advantages of washability are really special. Nylon tricot sheets whisk through suds in a lavatory, dry in no time, and need never be ironed.

Because it's so easy to wash them and return them to the bed, they save weight in the laundry and also the necessity of owning so many sheets and finding a place to store them.

Nylon tricot sheets come in pretty colors as well as white, and there are pillow cases to match. One manufacturer also makes nylon tricot crib sheets for baby.

A Tomato Dressing For Salad

By Edith M. Barber

SALAD has become so much a part of the usual meal that greens and vegetables for it are always kept on hand. Those who are content to use the same type of dressing every day like to make up a generous quantity of French dressing at one time and keep it in the refrigerator.

Of course, if you like, you may buy a ready-made dressing. There can, however, be so many interesting variations that a salad can have individual character each time it is served. While there are two types of dressing that I keep on hand, there are others I like to use occasionally.

French dressing made with fine flavored olive oil and sour cream to which chives or onion, a bit of herb vinegar and the usual salt and pepper is first choice. Also like a tomato dressing for use with unshredded greens. The recipe for this was given to me by the inventor, a man with gourmet tastes. Another one which is particularly good with the same kind of greens has a mayonnaise base thinned with chili sauce and contains minced crisp vegetables. It might be called a Russian dressing.

Special Tomato Dressing. Three cups canned tomatoes, one and one-half cups soft bread, one clove garlic, peeled, two tablespoons tarragon vinegar, six tablespoons olive oil, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-half teaspoon sugar.

Drain juice from tomatoes. Remove crust from bread. Cut garlic in three or four pieces, insert in bread, and allow to remain 30 minutes. Remove garlic, and add bread to tomatoes. Let soak until soft, and beat in vinegar and oil. Add seasonings, cover, and chill before serving. Yield: about three cups.

Russian Dressing. To one-half cup mayonnaise, add one-half cup chili sauce and one tablespoon each of chopped green pepper, chopped onion or chives, and chopped celery.

Waterproof Coat. A waterproof coat made of Dacron is among the newcomers for fall. This is cut sufficiently full to be worn over outer coats and is available in red, charcoal and navy as well as sand. The coat has its own separate hood, a carrying pouch, and a detachable belt.

My Day Appreciation For Book of Light Verse

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK. ON Thursday I spent a short time in my office and was delighted to have a chance to talk with Richard Winslow, who is doing a very interesting study on various organizations in the field of foreign affairs.

Then at noon I went down to St. Paul's chapel for a service to commemorate United Nations week. St. Paul's, erected in 1766, is the oldest of the Trinity parish chapels. I have always loved the churchyard at the back of St. Paul's and the historic feeling of this little chapel, where Washington worshipped when New York was the national capital. The altar piece was designed by Maj. L'Enfant, who was Washington's surveyor general and who laid out our national capital in Washington, D.C.

Besides the vicar, the Rev. Robert C. Hunsicker, a number of other clergymen took part in the service. Afterward we went over to Whyte's for lunch. This is a famous downtown restaurant for seafood, and I only hope my hosts enjoyed their lunch as much as I did.

I WAS GIVEN a new book of poems by Phyllis McGinley the other day, and have very much enjoyed reading it. The book has humor and is written in the lighter vein, although some of the poems I found very moving. The author has a real gift and much skill in her writing. I particularly relished one poem called "Meditations During a Permanent Wave." Join with her fervently when she says: "Of the small gifts of heaven it seems to me a more than usual share."

At birth was given To girls with curly hair. Those of us who are unblest know only too well how true that is. MISS MCGINLEY'S reflections on the poems and plays of T. S. Eliot also struck a responsive chord, as when she writes: "T. Eliot, the Anglican, who feared God. Removing his bowler, furling his umbrella, Set down, in riddles, dogma for the crowd."

I subscribe to that heartily, for a great deal of what T. S. Eliot has written is a riddle to me. Nevertheless, his poetry has a fascination, and I find I have to read it!

International Designer's Pattern

of 25-inch material for interfacing.

HERE'S "EXTRA RELIEF" FROM COLDS

DISCOMFORTS 666 ATTACKS ALL COLD SYMPTOMS AT ONE TIME... IN LESS TIME!

No ordinary pain-reliever can make this claim... but 666 can. The 666 formula contains a combination of prescription-type ingredients not found in any other cold medicine. For that "extra" relief, try 666 liquid or tablets. Remember... 666 does more because it has more.

666 LIQUID OR TABLETS

666 DOES MORE BECAUSE IT HAS MORE

The Perfect Secretary
by Anne Allison

CHAPTER NINE.

THE memory of the days spent in New York vanished in the swirling fog which met Richard Van Orden and his secretary upon their arrival home. The long ride from the airport to town was one of delight to both and as they approached the city from the airport a pale sun shone for a moment, lighting the downtown section like a fairyland, edging in gold the giant span of the boy bridge.

"The most thrilling place in the world," Van commented with a little smile. Lisa could not fathom. For some unexplained reason he seemed anxious to be off. "Are you too tired to go directly to the office?"

She was. She had not slept on the flight. But Lisa Evans, the perfect secretary, would never admit it. And she, too, felt the exhilaration of the cold, damp morning. "I'm not at all tired, Mr. Van Orden."

"Fine. I'll be along later. There are some things I want to attend to. And with his usual selfishness he disappeared into a taxi and left Lisa to find her own way."

Not that she really minded. She was always at her happiest when en route to the office. The staff met her with a curious mixture of remarks and attitudes. Lisa would have been more popular had it not been for her unexplained admiration of their employer. Bill Howland, alone, seemed genuinely glad to see her as he followed her into her private office and closed the door.

"You don't deserve to be missed," Bill said, helping her off with her coat, "but you were, at least by me. How was the trip?"

Lisa sat down at her familiar desk with a sigh of relief. "It was very successful. We got the Nordak perfume account."

His expression was wry as he lit a cigarette. "Who got it?"

Cooler Weather Likely by Wednesday

Flower soup.

It was the kind of place, Lisa thought, that Richard Van Orden detested. But she dared not think of Van, so adept was her companion at fathoming her thoughts.

AFTER dinner they roamed the narrow streets of Chinatown, sniffing the strange odors from markets which mingled oddly with sweet incense drifting from open shop doors. Foghorns boomed from their home in the bay and a wet mist spit at the passersby, casting strangers to erect umbrellas. Wiser San Franciscans knew the futility of this and cheerfully turned their faces toward the salty fog.

Is there some reason you don't want to talk about New York? Bill asked unexpectedly. "Perhaps," Lisa admitted. "But in any case it's all over now. Did you ever do something you were ashamed of, Bill?"

"Many times. But I don't think you have," Bill Howland said promptly, "unless Van Orden forced you."

"Please! It's been such a nice evening. Let's not talk about Van."

They had reached his car now and he waited until they were inside before he said, "Will you ever be able NOT to talk about him, Lisa?"

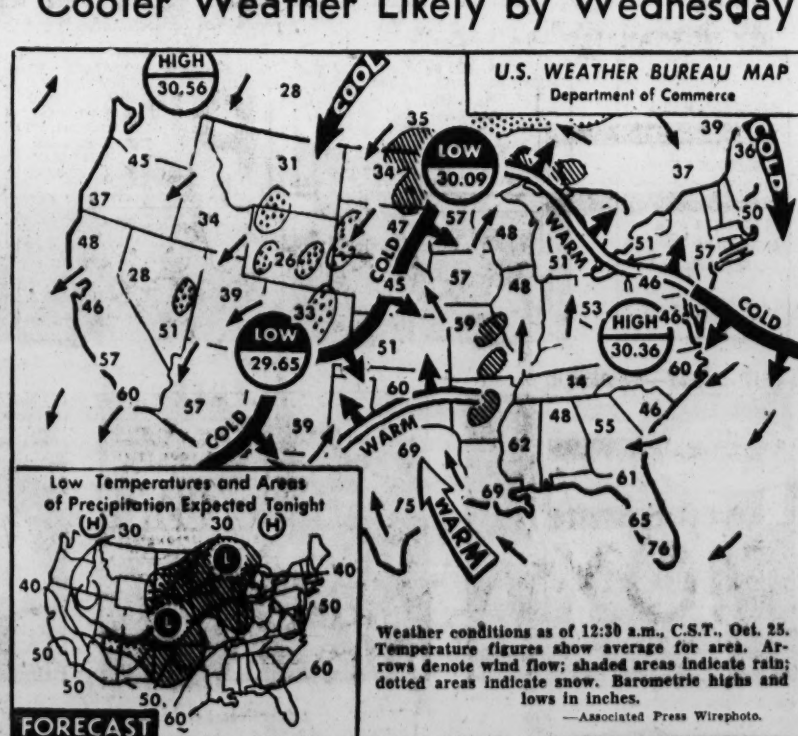

"I don't know what you mean."

"You know exactly what I mean. While you were gone I've been doing a lot of thinking. He hypnotizes you emotionally. Perhaps you don't realize how much. But it's cruel and it's bad I can't stand by and watch him ruin your life."

"It's not true," she said faintly, as he drew her into his arms, and yet with his lips on hers she could not deny the image of Richard Van Orden which rose between them.

Cooler weather should prevail in the St. Louis area by Wednesday, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said today. Meanwhile, late October mild weather is expected to continue through tomorrow with occasional showers. Wahlgren predicted temperatures ranging tomorrow from about 55 to the low 70s.

Showers in central and southern Missouri over the 24-hour period ending early today brought falls in the St. Louis area totaling .64 of an inch at Valley Park, .28 at Webster Groves, .24 at the Lambert-St. Louis Field Station, .2 at St. Charles and .17 in downtown St. Louis.

Precipitation downtown brought the total for the month to 2.63, as compared with the normal for the period of 2.36. Rain also was reported in the Plains states, Texas, Oklahoma and the Mississippi valley.

Heaviest amount reported by the Weather Bureau was 1.07 at Tulsa, Okla.

Cool weather prevailed today from the Rockies westward, and snow up to five inches was on the ground in parts of Utah, Nevada and the northern Rockies. Minimum temperatures in Missouri this morning varied from 47 at Kirksville to 57 at Kansas City, while the lowest in the nation was 17 at Winnemucca, Nev.

Uncle Ray's Column

AMSTERDAM.

A FRIEND said to me one day: "You ought to live across the street from a post office!"

Those words were uttered in a jesting spirit. I have many letters to mail and usually like to go personally to the post office to mail them. Many a time I have thought of how handy it would be to have a home, or office, within a few yards of the main post office in a city.

The people in Amsterdam have something almost as good as that! The street cars have mailboxes on them! In whatever part of the city a person may live, he can find tracks nearby, and can place letters in red boxes at the rear of the cars.

ALL THE STREET CARS go to the central railroad station, and reach it in from five minutes to half an hour. Postal clerks wait at the station, and use sacks to take letters from the traveling mailboxes. Several rooms in the big railway station are used for postal purposes.

That is one example of the efficient way in which the Dutch handle their affairs. Nowadays there is special need to be efficient. Holland has given up most of its colonies. The Dutch East Indies used to provide a rich and important trade, but much of that is gone.

To make up for lost trade, the Dutch are building up their industry. With the most thickly settled country in Europe, they must find ways to keep the people busy earning money.

AMONG THE EXPORTS of the Netherlands are cloth, clothing, machines and toys. The city of Amsterdam is a center for printing. Many foreign books, as well as those in the Dutch language, are printed here. The European edition of a New York daily newspaper is produced in Amsterdam.

Gerard Hoord, an official of a large printing company, kindly took me on a tour of his plant. I saw one big press busily printing a book in the Sanscrit language. This book is the Koran, holy book of the Moslems. Several hundred thousand copies have been ordered by Moslem groups in the Near East.
